DUST CLOUDS BLOW BUT CITY FAILS TO ACT

$19,000 Available To Settle Housewives' Problem But There's No Program.

UP TO ADMINISTRATION

Auditor Says Money For Oil, Calcium Chloride Waiting To Be Used.

Although the city administration has made no move in the past month to settle dust on unpaved streets—holding that it had no authority to purchase calcium chloride in place of road oil, reportedly unavailable due to a transportation shortage—a check of legislation today showed that it could purchase the calcium if it so desired.

Informed a month ago by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company that the customary order of road oil would not be available this year, because of a shortage of tank cars for shipping it, city officials were at a loss for an alternate method of settling dust on unimproved streets.

Calcium chloride was suggested, but officials maintained that they needed county approval for the purchase of calcium. However, the 1942 appropriation bill, set up $19,000 for the purchase of material, calcium chloride and oil."

The five-sixths gas tax had $8,000 set aside for "material, calcium chloride, and oil". The one-sixth gas fund tax had $1,000 set aside for "material, oil, etc."

The registration fee collected for the sale of license plates and operators' licenses, had $10,000 set aside for "matearial, oil, etc."

The city is given a share of the state tax on gasoline sales, according to the amount sold in this vicinity. The state requires that one-sixth of this amount must be used for improving state routes running through the city and the other five-sixths is left for improving other city streets.

Paul L. Kelley, city auditor, said today that these funds, orginally totaling $19,000 and onw more than $16,000, are available for any street materials the administration sees fit to buy."

Kelley also stated that the administration had the "full" responsibility of naming the streets which will be treated for dust. The auditor said that in recent years city council has helped to

FDR CONFERS

Studies Gasoline and Rubber Shortages at Session.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt began today a comprehensive study of the interlinked shortages of gasoline and rubber. He summoned to the White House for conference on the problem 11 government executives vitally concerned with the issue.

To a question whether he would order nationwide rationing of gasoline by mid-July, he responded at a press conference that he was going to begin talking about the gasoline situation at the noon parley.

The rubber problem also was to be canvassed, he said, when his views were sought on the necessity or desirability of a nationwide collection of scrap rubber.

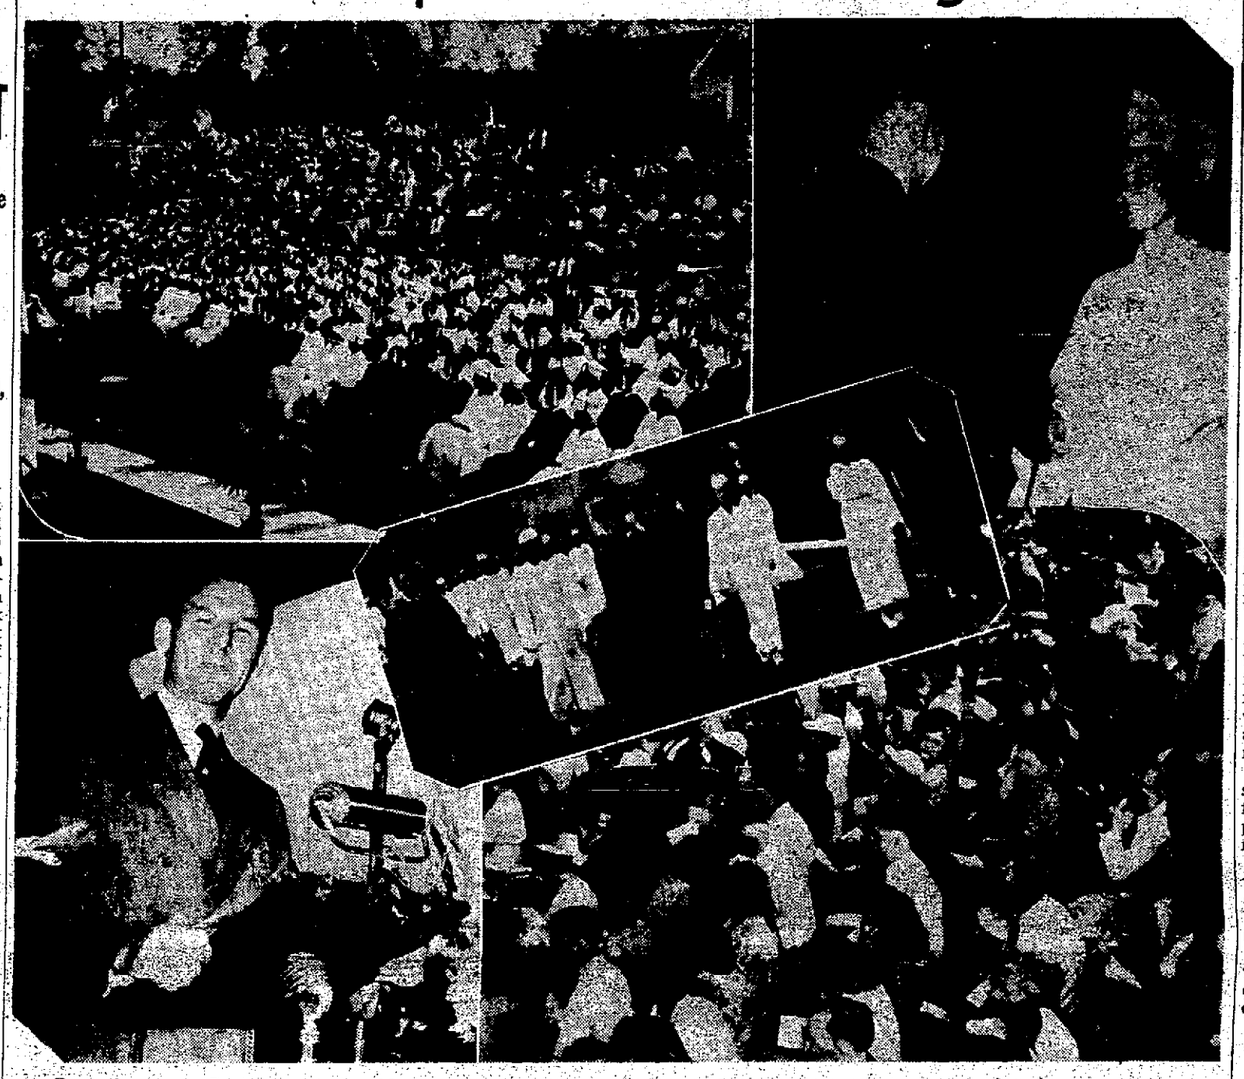
As 308 Get Diplomas at Senior High Stadium



Beneath a warm June sun and clear blue sky, commencement exercises for the 308 graduates of Mansfield Senior high school were held at Stadium field last night. The class of 159 girls and 149 boys equals the largest in the school's history, the June 1939 class also having 308 graduates. At top left the class, attired in dubonnet and white caps and gowns is shown seated before the speakers' stand. Behind them is a portion of the crowd of approximately 3,000 proud friends and relatives who witnessed the exercises. Top right, Helen Anne Troll flashes a big smile as she receives her diploma and congratulations from H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education. Lower left, Dr. Gordon K. Chalmers, president of Kenyon college, smiles down from the speakers' platform as he addresses the graduates. . . . A closeup of a portion of the crowd of relatives and friends seated in the stands is shown at lower right. . . . The center picture shows graduates as they marched, six abreast, out of the stadium at the close of the commencement exercise.

Officers Complete Plans For Ceremony Here Six Months After Pearl Harbor.

Mansfield Navy recruiting officers completed arrangements today for the city's participation in the nation-wide program of the Navy to swear into service the "avengers of Pearl Harbor" at 2:25 p. m. Sunday—six months to the hour and minute after Japanese planes attacked America's Hawaiian base.

Throughout the nation, an estimated 10,000 sailors, marines and coast guardsmen will take the oath of allegiance at ceremonies to be staged simultaneously in more than 500 cities.

The Mansfield ceremony will be staged in Central park, and will start at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. At least 12 men from this area will be sworn into service, and additional enlistments this week-end may double that number, according to W. G. Cox, officer in charge of the Mansfield recruiting station.

The oath will be administered

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Citing a nervous breakdown as the cause, a suicide verdict was returned today in the death of William Hobbs, 69, who shot himself through the head.

Increase Proficiency, Skill, Graduates Told

By FRED ACKERMAN

"War has changed the needs of the nation. It is now your patriotic duty to go on and increase your skill and proficiency if we are to win the war," Dr. Gordon K. Chalmers, president of Kenyon college, told 308 Senior high school graduates at outdoor commencement exercises in Stadium field last night.

"The United States is short of the skill which you must supply," he said, "skill in medicine, engineering, chemistry, farming, nursing, physics, mathematics and foreign languages."

With boys wearing dubonnet robes and the girls dressed in white caps and gowns the graduates presented a colorful picture beneath the warm sun and clear blue sky as they filed slowly to their seats. The ceremonies were over before last night's rain storm.

Marching six abreast, the graduates were led by two standard bearers carrying the American and school flags.

The class of 159 girls and 149 boys was massed before the speakers' stand, decorated with flowers, palms and ferns and flanked by the two flags. Behind the graduates a crowd of approximately 3,000 relatives and friends of graduates filled the stands on the west side of the stadium.

Addressing the first Mansfield high school class to graduate during war-time, Dr. Chalmers stated that no school boy or girl of talent fulfills his duty to America if he does not improve his skill this summer and next autumn.

14 KILLED

Soldiers and Civilians Die as Plane Hits Hillside.

HAMILTON FIELD, Cal.—(U.P.)—Fourteen men, including both civilians and soldiers, were killed last night when a heavy bomber crashed into a hillside three miles northwest of here, Hamilton field authorities announced today.

The dead included seven army men, five civilians, and at least two additional men whose status was not ascertained officially at once.

The members of the plane's crew, including pilot, co-pilot, navigator, mechanic and radioman, were civilians, Hamilton field announced.

BUTLER DISPUTE FLARES AGAIN

School Board Instigates New Ouster Move Against Weekley.

BUTLER—This village was all stirred up again today over new ouster proceedings against Willard S. Weekley, superintendent of the centralized school here.

Latest action to bring into the open the smoldering scrap, which has divided townsfolk into two factions, was taken by the village school board.

According to Archie O'Hearn, clerk, the board at a special meeting this week voted 3 to 1 to seek the discharge of the superintendent, central figure in a town argument for the past several months.

O'Hearn said Rupert Roberts, Kinsey Morgan and Walter Wareham, voted to seek the discharge. Ivan Gower, board president, opposed the move. The fifth member, Wade Forbes, was absent.

First action was taken early in February when a group of citizens

21 KILLED, 40 HURT IN ARMS PLANT BLAST

Terrific Explosion Rocks Ordnance Plant at Elwood, Ind.

CHICAGO FEELS JOLT

Bodies Blown to Bits, Damage Limited to Small Area of Large Factory.

(By International News Service)

ELWOOD, Ill. — Twenty-one munitions workers were killed and 40 others injured today in a terrific explosion in the munitions plant of the Elwood ordnance works.

Because of the tremendous force of the blast a number of the bodies were blown to bits, making it difficult to determine the exact number killed, but a physician who worked in the tangled wreckage said he believed 21 must have met their death.

At the moment of the explosion, a great sheet of vari-colored flame lighted the sky above the plant and the earth rocked for miles around.

The shock was felt as far distant as Chicago, 40 miles away, and was reported also to have been felt in Waukegan, Ill., 67 miles to the north.

In cities nearer by, windows were shattered and plaster knocked from the walls of homes and other buildings.

Destruction at the ordnance works, however, was localized by the layout of the $30,000,000 plant, each unit of which is completet in itself. The buildings are spread out over an area of several miles to prevent an explosion in one building resulting in explosions in others.

Curously, there was little damage to windows in the village of Elwood, at one edge of the reservation, although at points 20 to 25 miles away house windows and store plate glass windows were blown in.

The factory, covering 23 square miles, began production of munitions in the fall of 1941, two months ahead of schedule. It was constructed in 10 months. More than 8,000 persons are employed on three shifts.

At the time the works opened, Lt. Col. T. C. Gerber, then the director, termed it the largest oper-

Enemy Carrier' Battleship Hit During Attack

Heavy Assault on Pacific Base Fails as American Forces Engage Foe; Continue Pursuit of Nippon Fleet; Raid Damage Light.

(By United Press)

A major naval and air battle in which the Japanese already have lost the first round was believed developing today in the far Pacific where U. S. planes and warships are in pursuit of an enemy fleet.

The U. S. Pacific naval command at Pearl Harbor announced that "our attacks on the enemy are continuing" after the damaging of a Japanese battleship, an aircraft carrier and probably other vessels which attacked the American Pacific outpost on Midway island at noon Thursday.

The unsuccessful attack on Midway, only 24 hours after two Japanese air raids on the Alaskan naval base of Dutch Harbor, highlighted suddenly intensified fighting on sea and in the air along a vast battlefront reaching from Alaska to Australia.

It marked a sudden shift in Japanese strategy, the purpose of which still remains obscure.

Dispatches from Honolulu and Australia said that the Japanese attacks on Dutch Harbor and upon Midway, which lies 1,653 miles southwest of the Alaskan Aleutian islands base, may have been for either one or two main purposes:

1—To serve as a diversion for a bigger assault—upon the United States west coast, upon Pearl Harbor or against the U. S. sup-

FDR Warns Japs U. S. Will Use Gas

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt told today of official information that Japan was using poison gas against China and grimly declared that if the Japanese persisted in this form of warfare, the United States would mete out "retaliation in kind and in full measure."

The reports that Japan on several occasions had resorted to gas warfare was described by the chief executive to his press conference as authoritative. He read a brief formal statement, which he said the state department had prepared, making it unequivocally clear that the United States would consider the use of gas against China or any other United Nations as an action against the United States.

LAND: Rommel Brings Up Aid As British Smash Tank Attack

(By Associated Press)

Marshal Erwin Rommel was reported moving strong Axis reinforcements into the bloody 11-day-old battle of North Africa today as the British announced they had smashed an Axis tank assault on Bir El Hacheim for the second time in two days.

Bir El Hacheim, a desert water hole, is the southern anchor of a 50-mile British defense line stretched across the hot sands to the Mediterranean sea.

British headquarters said British and Indian troops struck from the rear to relieve the Free French and Indian garrison at Bir El Hacheim after the defenders had twice rejected German demands that they surrender the key stronghold.

Front-line dispatches said Rommel was speeding fresh troops and tanks into the battle sector around Tobruk in an attempt to relieve pressure on a nine-mile corridor which Axis forces had driven into the British main defense line.

British mechanized forces were reported slashing at Axis tanks holding the breach, while

SEA: Week's Sinkings Mount to 18; Public Probe of Navy Seen

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The navy today announced torpedoing of a medium-sized Norwegian and a medium-sized Dutch merchant ship in the Atlantic. The Norwegian vessel also was shelled by the submarine which fired the torpedoes, the navy said. Survivors of both ships have been landed at an east coast port.

(By Associated Press)

Announcement of the sinking of five more Allied merchant vessels and a navy patrol boat may result in a public investigation of the navy's campaign against undersea raiders.

As the navy reported yesterday the recent loss of the patrol boat and four merchantmen in the Atlantic and one merchantman in the far Pacific, Chairman Ellender, (D., La.) of a senate naval affairs sub-committee said in Washington that naval officers might be called in a public hearing.

"If we are not entirely satisfied that everything possible is being done to halt these sinkings," Ellender declared, "We are going into the whole matter in public."

The sinkings announced yesterday brought United Nations or neutral shipping losses in the Atlantic to 18 reported so far this week, and boosted the total since Pearl Harbor to 245 merchantmen sunk in Atlantic waters.

Besides the patrol boat—the U. S. S. Cythera—two American merchantmen were among the victims announced yesterday.

Both of these were sunk in the Caribbean area.

The other Atlantic sinkings were those of a British merchantman in the Gulf of Mexico and

Air Raid? Reformatory Break? Train Wreck? No, It Was Just a B. & O. Engine Whistle That Got Stuck

Thousands of Phone Calls Clog Lines for Two Hours.

By ALVIN L. KRIEG

No, it wasn't an air raid.

It wasn't a riot at the reformatory either. Nor was it a big train wreck, or a fire, or any other disaster.

As a matter of fact, it was just a train whistle that got stuck.

But it caused plenty of commotion and excitement and curiosity in Mansfield last night. It was still the subject of discussion today. The popular question was:

"Did you hear the whistle?"

Practically everyone did, except for a few who went to bed at 9:30 because they had been up late the night before. And it's a cinch they felt a little left out today, because they missed out on all the fun.

The whistle which got stuck was on the engine of a Willard-to-Newark freight train of the Baltimore and Ohio. It stuck just as the train drew into the north end of Mansfield at 10:30.

It was fun for a large number of folks but not so amusing to those who have anything to do with telephone service.

No official figures are available, since phones of the Mansfield Telephone company are on automatic dial service. But it's a safe bet there were thou-sands of calls made between ply route over which vast amounts of war materials are pouring into Australia.

2—To provide a defense against what the Japanese fear may be an Allied attack and to blunt the points of the "daggers" of Dutch Harbor and Midway, which are pointed at Japan's island empire. Dutch Harbor is 2,835 miles from Tokyo and Midway 2,588 miles.

In assaults undoubtedly well timed with the other Pacific developments, Allied planes were revealed at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian headquarters to have sunk two and probably three Japanese submarines in the supply lanes off Australia's east coast, bringing to six and probably seven a five-day toll of enemy submarines sent to the bottom.

Fliers of a Dutch East Indies squadron sighted the three enemy submarines, at widely separated points. On Sunday night four 70-foot Japanese subs were sunk in Sydney harbor.

American and Australian planes, steadily increasing the power of their attacks off Australia's northern invasion flank, left big fires and ruined docks and buildings in the wake of new assaults on three Japanese island bases—Rabaul on New Britain island, on Timor island and in the Solomons.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet, revealed the Japanese attack on Midway island and the "continuing attacks" against the enemy forces in a communique issued from his headquarters at Pearl Harbor.

In addition to damaging the Japanese battleship and carrier the navy, army and air force defenders of Midway shot down many enemy planes in beating off the carrier-based attack, it was said.

The fact that a battleship was included indicated that the enemy force moving up to within 1,150 miles of Hawaii and Pearl Harbor may have been of considerable size, including cruisers and destroyers.

Only minor damage was done to the U. S. defenses on Midway, which has been attacked six times by Japanese planes and warships since the outbreak of the war in the Pacific six months ago. The island lies along the United States' Dutch Harbor-Pearl Harbor defense line.

Allied Planes Get 2 More Jap Subs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia —(AP)— Allied planes, protecting the vital shipping lanes over which United States war supplies are flowing into Australia, have sunk two Japanese submarines and probably a third off the east coast of this continent, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

This success brought to six, and possibly seven, the number of Japanese undersea raiders destroyed by the defenders of Australia in the last five days. Four enemy midget submarines were reported sunk Sunday night in an abortive raid on Sydney harbor.

Allied airmen also were reported to have struck yesterday at Japanese bases in the islands north of Australia, blasting airdromes and shipping facilities.

The Allied aircraft credited with the latest submarine sinkings apparently were searching for submersibles which only yesterday were reported to have attacked three vessels in the Sydney area, sending one to the bottom but failing to damage the other two.

Requirements Committee Set Up By Nelson.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson today created a food requirements committee under the chairmanship of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to control the production and allocation of all civilian and military food supplies.

Establishment of the new nine-member committee, within the war production board, is expected to be followed in a few days by announcement of a combined British-American food board, with Wickard as the top American representative.

The new committee will determine civilian, military and foreign food requirements, Nelson announced, and has authority to speed up or curtail domestic output of foods "as well as the importation of foods and agricultural materials from which food are derived."

Italians Command German Subs

KEY WEST, Fla. — (INS) — Strong indication that Germany is running short of naval officers was seen today in the disclosure that the Nazis apparently are sending out their submarines and crews under the command of Italians.

This was revealed by the master of a medium-sized coal-burning British freighter which was torpedoed and sunk off the south coast of Cuba May 27. Three of the ship's Chinese coal passers and D. L. Thompson, 32, fourth assistant engineer, were killed in the explosion of the first torpedo.

The remaining 81 survivors, including 29 Chinese, were picked up after drifting four days in lifeboats and were brought to Key West.

Capt. Alexander Pope said that when the submarine surfaced after his ship went down, he noted that the captain was Italian, the crew and the U-boat appeared to be of German design and make.

CITY FAILS TO ACT ON DUST

prepare a list but that the administration had the full authority to proceed "on its own."

City council on April 1 designated 157 streets and 94 alleys to be treated for dust laying. The administration has not acted to treat any of these streets as yet.

Complicating the picture a bit farther, Carl H. Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, today said his company would be able to supply about a car and a half of road oil, probably within a week. The city uses about seven cars of oil each summer.

This was news to Service-Safety Director Fred Wolff.

Wolff said that if oil was delivered, however, the city "would be glad to get it," but said that he could not say which city streets would be treated with the small oil shipment.

Meanwhile, as a result of the administration's inactivity, housewives were finding a daily covering of dust on curtains and furniture as passing cars raised dust clouds on unimproved streets, which poured through open windows into their homes.

Some residents on such streets have obtained dust settling agents of various kinds at their own expense—some using calcium chloride and others using discarded motor oil, which alleviates to a degree, if it does not cure, the dust problem.

Councilman George C. Kyle, chairman of council's streets committee, has voiced opposition to the use of calcium chloride to settle dust, claiming that the salt is damaging to the steel understructure of automobiles, pointing out that it is necessary now for everyone to keep his car in the best possible condition.

To this, City Engineer W. C. Statler contends that the action of the salt on the steel structure of cars is no worse than the deteriorating effect of road oil on tires.

The facts are that most of the city's streets—at least those most heavily traveled — are hard-surfaced and that those needing dust treatment are used less than the others.

County commissioners have already completed their road treatment program, using calcium.

Fleet of Army Jeeps to Visit City

A fleet of light-weight reconnaissance cars of the Army, popularly known as Jeeps, will visit Mansfield under sponsorship of the Treasury Department and the Army on Friday, June 12. Here are two views of a Jeep being put through its paces in both day and night tests on the muddy, rolling terrain of proving grounds at Toledo. Roger H. Bolin, Westinghouse Advertising and Sales Promotion Manager, has been named chairman of a committee to arrange a civic demonstration marking the occasion of the Jeep caravan's visit here.

JEEP CARAVAN ARRIVES NEXT WEEK TO BOOST SALE OF BONDS

Residents of Mansfield and other points in Richland county will have the opportunity next week to get personally acquainted with the "Jeep," the Army's rugged little runabout which has risen to fame in the World War No. 2.

An entire fleet of the vehicles will arrive in the city a week from today—Friday, June 12—as part of a swing through principal cities in the state to stimulate war bond sales, Paul M. Eliot, Richland county war bond chairman, was notified today by army officials.

Driven by soldiers from the Fifth Corps Area headquarters at Fort Hayes, the jeep caravan will spend most of the day in Mansfield. Eliot started making preparations at once for an elaborate civic demonstration.

To handle details of arranging for the city's welcome to the fleet, Eliot announced appointment of a civic committee headed by Roger H. Bolin, merchandise advertising and sales promotion manager of Westinghouse.

The fleet's tour is being conducted by the treasury department and the U. S. army, in conjunction with the Willys-Overland Motors of Toledo, whose engineers developed the standard design jeep.

Heading the contingent will be Major Charles S. Robinson, public relations officer from Fort Hayes. The officer in charge and the soldier-drivers of the jeeps will be available to demonstrate their performance and explain their operation to the public, Eliot was advised.

Bolin said today he would contact treasury officials to try to arrange rides in the jeeps for residents who make bond purchases on the day the fleet is here.

Tentative plans call for a public welcoming ceremony at the square, at noon on Friday, and for the jeeps to tour the business sections of the city throughout the day.

At the close of the Mansfield ceremony, at least part of the jeeps will go to Shelby for a similar ceremony, Bolin said. Another group will visit Crestline, where they will be guests of Boy Scouts of the area who will be encamped there, and will participate in a parade on Friday evening.

The caravan will come to Mansfield from Springfield, and proceed the next day to Canton.

Air Raid? Reformatory Break? No. 'Twas Just a Train Whistle

cause of the rush, countless folks got the busy signal, and promptly tried to reach someone else.

The only record available from the telephone company is on the total number of calls received by the information and long distance operators. Both were swamped for more than an hour by callers who wanted to know what it was all about. Hundreds phoned all the railroad offices. Empire Sheet and Tin Plate, and other industrial plants.

Police Chief Thomas J. Bell and other members of the police force received numerous calls at their homes, as did News-Journal staff members.

Older residents thought it was the reformatory whistle, but it has been many years since the institution blew its whistle to warn that there had been an escape of one or more inmates.

Many persons seriously believed the whistle was the warning of an approaching air raid — probably because it came only a day after the first Japanese aerial attack on American property at Dutch Harbor. Some folks turned out the lights in their homes, a few even got in their cars and drove in the country.

Many were asking today why they didn't fix it if the whistle got stuck, but it's not as easy as that. C. W. Keefer, B. & O. yardmaster in Mansfield provided the explanation.

A train whistle draws steam from the same boiler that provides the steam for propulsion. If the whistle sticks, there's no way to release it until the steam pressure is released. It's live steam—under pressure of 200 pounds per square inch, which pours out of the whistle opening, and it can't be bottled up.

Trainmen have no choice but to let the fire die down to release the pressure. That's what they did last night. The engine was run onto a siding at the B. & O. yards, another locomotive was hooked on the freight, and it rolled on to Newark.

It was two hours before the whistle stopped blowing, but it was only about an hour that the noise was of the usual intensity. It gradually died down, and finally—about 12:30 a. m., it stopped altogether.

By that time, a lot of sleep had been lost, and a new chapter had been written in Mansfield annals.

Just as a famous false report about a dam breaking at Columbus caused great confusion in that city on a day in 1913—a situation immortalized by James Thurber in his story, "The Day the Dam Broke," just as Orson Welles created a great stir with his men from Mars, the evening of June 4, 1942, will be remembered in Mansfield as "The Night the Whistle Blew."

Trondheim is a naval concentration point for German thrusts against the Allied supply route to Arctic Murmansk and Archangel.

One of the Nazi warships was said to have developed a definite list.

Soviet dispatches reported that Russian planes, fighting to safeguard the ocean route for war material from Britain and the United States, hammered home three sharp attacks on bases from which German bombers have been ranging the seaways.

At least 40 Nazi planes were reported destroyed and Nazi airfields were heavily damaged.

Air warfare—RAF bombers omitted attacks on Germany overnight for the first time this month, centering their blows on the channel "invasion" port of Dieppe, France, and airdromes in Nazi occupied Holland.

Before sunrise, RAF fighter squadrons carried on the offensive with attacks along the French coast. Explosions rumbled across the channel for two hours.

Russian campaign—Soviet headquarters reported that Russian artillery had smashed a German attempt to drive a wedge into Red army lines on the Bryansk front, 210 miles southwest of Moscow, throwing the invaders back with 280 killed.

The long battle line as a whole appeared quiet.

Hitler's field headquarters said German troops gained ground in attacks on the Ukraine, Moscow and Leningrad fronts, but these were apparently only minor actions.

A Rome broadcast, quoting German military quarters, said Russian sea-borne forces attempted a landing on the north shore of the Sea of Azov in the Ukraine, behind the lines of German-held Taganrog. The broadcast said the Russians, attacking in three motorized barges, were driven off.

Nazis Fire On Each Other During Raid

LONDON—(AP)—Germans fired upon Germans during the British commando raid early yesterday against Boulogne-Le Touquet defenses, one Nazi patrol boat was sunk and another was grounded in flames and smoke columns marked areas of destruction, eyewitnesses said today.

"Jerry has got the jitters," commented a 23-year-old officer of the British special service troops.

Dropped from naval craft into the surf of the channel coast of occupied France where an Allied expeditionary force may land one day, the raiders were heavily armed.

The commandos were established on the beach and slashing through barbed wire entanglements before discovery touched off a pattern of fire and cross-fire from confused Nazi gun crews, the British said.

Jap Subs Raid Madagascar Harbor

LONDON—(INS)—Japanese submarines made an attack last Saturday on the harbor of Diego Suarez, Madagascar, it was officially announced today.

There were no casualties among British ships which took over the French naval base after a two-day engagement with Vichy forces last month, it was said.

Japanese claims that a battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class and a light cruiser of the Arethusa class were seriously damaged by torpedo hits were termed "untrue."

Nazi Battleships Hit at Trondheim

LONDON —(AP)— The German battleship Tirpitz and the German heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper received "several direct hits" during the last RAF bombing raid on the Trondheim area, Norwegian sources reported here today, quoting advices from Trondheim.

One of the ships, not specified, developed a definite list, these sources said.

The Norwegians said the RAF raids April 29-30 also scored hits on airfields at Vaernes and Oerlandet. The Germans blocked off the Oerlandet field, but it was learned the barracks were hit and 17 Germans killed at Vaernes.

After the raids, these sources added, workmen on the German naval base being built at Trondheim went on strike and many left area.

HONOR HEYDRICH

Nazis Plan Princely Funeral For Hangman, Hunt Chutists.

LONDON — (U.P.) — The Nazis prepared a princely funeral for their ace terrorist today, while surviving Gestapo henchman frantically hunted patriot-parachutists they feared had landed in Czechoslovakia to take a general vengeance of German officials.

The body of Reinhard (the Hangman) Heydrich was borne in "solemn ceremony" from Bulowka hospital, where he died yesterday, to Prague citadel, where it lay in state, the German Official News Agency said.

The Trans-Ocean Agency reported that 24 more hostages had been shot at Prague, where patriots shot Heydrich on May 27, making a total of 267 innocent persons who have been shot in reprisal.

The German radio ranted that the British were responsible for the killing of Heydrich.

BUTLER DISPUTE FLARES AGAIN

School Board Instigates New Ouster Move Against Weekley.

in the school district brought charges for his dismissal on the grounds of "misconduct," which were never aired. Weekley denied the charges and asked for a public hearing on the matter.

Country Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz, who was drawn into the fight after the board had suspended the superintendent and then rescinded its action several days later, recently ruled that the board's first action in suspending the school official was illegal.

In an opinion, Lutz said that board members would have to take action, ruling that the charges presented by the citizens and acted on by the board were not in accordance with the law.

The school was closed Feb. 6 when about 300 of the school's 450 pupils struck in protest to Weekley's suspension. The school reopened several days later when the board rescinded the suspension.

RUMOR'S FACT

It's Out Now: Paulette Goddard Divorces Charles Chaplin.

JUAREZ, Mexico —(INS)— The often-rumored, often denied separation of Paulette Goddard and Charles Chaplin was a matter of legal fact today after a Juarez civil court granted the movie actress a divorce from the famous comedian.

Neither Chaplin nor the actress was present in court. The couple was married in Canton, China, in June, 1936.

CLASS OF 210 GRADUATE AT ASHLAND HIGH

John C. Myers Scholarships Awarded to Four Graduates.

ASHLAND—A class of 210 seniors, 117 girls and 93 boys, Ashland high school's largest class of graduates, received diplomas at the 64th annual commencement at McDowell auditorium last night.

A student program featured the graduation. The theme was "The Graduates of 1942 In a World at War."

Of interest was the awarding of the John C. Myers scholarships. Recipients were Esther McNaull who received $150, and Grace Phillips, who received $100. George Bott received the $150 award for the boys and Robert Semple the $100 award. Awards were made on a point basis from activities, faculty vote, student vote and scholarship rank.

Miss McNaull, the salutatorian, spoke on "Peace Time Education." Other subjects were "Education for Victory" by Eileen Berry; "The Patriotic Motif" by Rosemary Page; "The High School Graduate Looks at a World In Flames" by Bill Morganstern; "Opportunities Offered by the Armed Services" by George Bott; "Opportunities In Civilian Employment" by Robert Semple; "The Farmer and the War" by Richard Howman; "Shall I Go to College?" by Betty Hiner; "Remaking Our World" by Jeanette Freer with the valedictorian, Miss Phillips, concluding the program with the subject, "In Conclusion."

S. F. Jameson presented the graduating class to the board of education for their diplomas which were presented by Charles W. Freer, president.

One of last night's graduates is already in the U. S. navy. He is Charles Hartle, who returned from Great Lakes, where he is stationed, for commencement.

Officers of the 1942 class were: Paul Berry, president; Harry Baxter, vice president; Leland Brubaker, treasurer; and Betty Hiner, secretary. These officers with Charles Bartley, Mary McAdoo, Marilyn Miller, Marguerite Richert, William Shinn and Woodford Garrigus, comprised the senior council.

The new district superintendent formerly was superintendent of organization in the company vice president's office in Chicago, a job taken over recently by his brother, Herman Dunlap.

GALION GIRL WED RECENTLY

Teacher Married in Quiet Ceremony Thursday at Methodist Church.

GALION — At a quiet ceremony performed at the First Methodist church Thursday afternoon, Betty Zane Miller, art teacher in the Galion schools, became the bride of Walker Beroset, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Beroset of Toledo. The single ring service was read by Rev. W. N. Robertson.

Attendants were the parents of the groom. For her wedding the bride chose a floral print dress with wine accessories. Her corsage was of roses.

Mrs. Beroset is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Miller of Zanesville, and is a graduate of Athens high school and Ohio university. Before coming to Galion last fall she taught in the Toledo county schools. Her husband is a graduate of Toledo Scott high school and is employed at Patterson Field, Dayton.

Following the wedding the couple left immediately for Dayton where they will reside.

Mrs. E. W. McHenry presided at the business meeting during which reports from the delegates who attended the branch meeting at Shelby on May 19, 20, were given.

RENEW PLAN TO PAVE ROUTE 42 ON PARK AVENUE

State, City Council Studies New Proposal For $72,000 Improvement Project.

Legislation for a joint city-state plan to resurface a portion of U. S. Route 42 in Mansfield and a state truck by-pass will be considered by city council in a special meeting to be held within the next few days.

In the discussion stage for several months, a plan to resurface Park avenue east from the city limits to and around Central park and also to repave Hedges and East First streets is beginning to crystallize.

If the plan is carried out, the city will be asked to contribute $28,600 of the $72,000 needed for the entire project. Council members are attempting to get the state to ascertain the city's or taxpayers' share in the project.

Council members are also looking for a reserve of funds to raise the $28,600 needed by the city. Despite war conditions, council members have expressed an unwillingness to foresake some of the regular peacetime projects and are trying to find the money elsewhere. One councilman has even suggested use of the city's parking meter funds which are especially set aside for traffic use only.

At last Tuesday night's meeting, council indicated that a special meeting would be held Thursday or Friday night but City Solicitor L. K. Wagner said today that it looked as though the meeting would not be held until next week.

Not only has one councilman suggested raiding parking meter receipts, another has a plan whereby the property-owners along the route to be improved would be assessed, according to their foot-frontage.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1942.

It seems to be the idea of some people to live fast and have it over with.

Another uninteresting experience will be to sit on the front porch Sunday afternoon and watch nobody driving by.

That "X" on the congressman's gasoline card might be preserved to serve later in marking the spot where the holder formerly sat.

More Helpless Hostages Doomed

THE DEATH of Reinhard Heydrich, variously known as "hangman" and "butcher," cannot fail to result in the brutal killing of additional scores of quite innocent hostages, who are held by the thousands in Nazi-occupied territory for purposes of wholesale slaughter in the event of violence being done any of the hirelings of Hitler.

Possibly no phase of Nazi savagery adds more greatly to the determination of civilized people to wipe Hitlerism from the world than does such wanton murder of helpless people.

But, even under this reign of terrorism, the spirit of the brave people of independent countries in Europe, temporarily under Nazi domination, has not been crushed and they only await opportunity to throw their fighting strength on the side of the United Nations. When the right moment arrives these victims of Nazi ruthlessness will become an important factor in the final crushing of Axis power.

Ban On Rent Increases

ACTION by the government to hold rents in this area to the March 1 level is another of the anti-inflationary steps deemed necessary for the duration of war.

While, as has been pointed out in other cities where rent "freezing" has already been made effective, the ruling will result in hardship in some instances where owners of rental property are solely dependent on such income to meet upkeep costs, taxes and increased living expenses, the general idea seems to be in accord with efforts to prevent disastrous inflation.

There is still the inequity, however, of attempting to control prices and rents without placing a ceiling on wages, and it is in repair and maintenance costs that property owners may encounter difficulties in making present rental income meet outgo, with sufficient margin to pay taxes, special assessments, insurance premiums and the like.

Saturday P. M. Parking Meter Fee

THERE has been some talk in Mansfield about the advisability of making parking meter operation uniform throughout the week, with 6 p. m., as the deadline, instead of extension to 9 p. m., Saturday nights, as has been done since meters were installed here.

This raises an interesting point, which came up in Cleveland recently, as to whether the suspension of meter charge on holidays applies to Saturday afternoons and evenings, which, under Ohio law, are half-holidays.

The question was raised by a Cleveland attorney whose car was being tagged for non-payment of a meter fee on Saturday afternoon. He turned to a section in the Ohio general code, in which it is set forth that each Saturday in the year "from 12 o'clock noon until 12 o'clock midnight" is a legal half-holiday.

It appears that lettering on the Cleveland meters is to be changed, as a result of the lawyer's contention, but here it might be simpler, if parking meter revenue is in excess of needs for intended purposes, to suspend parking meter fees at noon on Saturdays.

Fair Request By Postal Employes

A GREAT MANY people have been caught in the economic muddle as a result of the war, but none more so than postal employes.

For years they had battled against heavy odds for a pay raise which they felt was due them. Then came the war boom which not only caused living costs to advance, but caused increased government expenses for anything except military causes to be frowned upon.

The fact remains, however, that the postal employe is harder worked than ever these days and he is working at the same schedule of salaries as in 1925.

Organized clerks and carriers have caused to be introduced in congress a measure which would give each one a $300-a-year bonus until six months after the end of the war. Since their present $2,100 a year maximum pay has not been raised in 17 years, the 15 per cent raise which the $300 represents would scarcely do more than keep pace with the rise in the cost of living.

Because the pay scale is now definitely substandard, we believe that a raise or a bonus for the postal workers would not be inconsistent with the national policy of stabilizing wages.

Baruch Continues To Serve

BERNARD BARUCH is a unique institution. He might be characterized as an "elder statesman" who has never held an elective job. He served with great distinction as chairman of the War Industries Board in the last war. He has been a confidential adviser to many presidents, regardless of political considerations. Apparently he has never drawn a salary from government. He is the "Nestor" of American public life, a wise and disinterested statesman, above party and class.

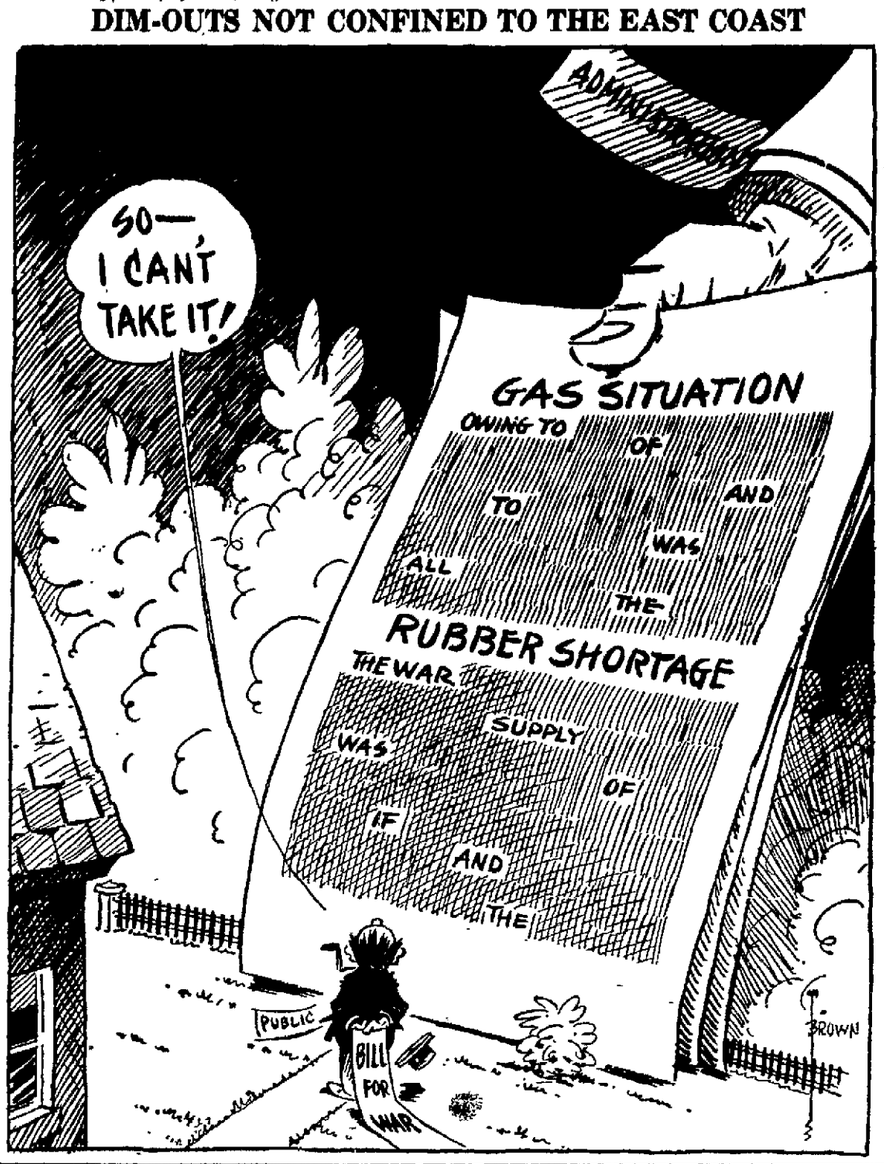
It is good to see him accepting now an official position as adviser on the army's $30,000,000,000 ordnance program, along with other prominent business leaders—K. T. Keller of the Chrysler corporation, Benjamin F. Fairless of the U. S. Steel corporation and Louis H. Brown of the Johns-Manville corporation. All four are on the staff of Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, jr. The more of such business men the government can annex to help handle the vast war job, the better it will be for the war effort, and for the federal treasury at the end of the war.

Astrologers are predicting the doom of Hitler in 1942—but it wouldn't be a good idea to sit back and depend on the stars to bring this about.

The Jap continues an attempt to "save his face"—although, according to American cartoonists, it's scarcely worth the effort.

If some jobs are to be frozen the next three months would seem to be a pleasant time for it.

DIM-OUTS NOT CONFINED TO THE EAST COAST



Byrd Charges Billions Are Wasted

CHARGING that while American soldiers fight for their lives and American civilians pay to the hilt, Washington spendthrifts toss away two billion dollars a year on bands, picnic grounds, ski runs and pansy beds, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia declared today in a signed article in the American Magazine that "the Battle of Washington must be won first."

"While you hesitate to buy a ticket to a movie show, certain nonessential government agencies are actually trying to think up ways to spend more money," Senator Byrd writes, and proceeds to cite numerous specific examples.

"Two billion dollars a year is being tossed away by these agencies," he states, enough to pay $100 on the taxes of 20,000,000 Americans. As typical, the Senator points to a request by a WPA representative in West Virginia for $123,747 to organize bands, choruses and orchestras among WPA workers and to furnish them with instruments. The WPA in Washington was "so eager to spend instead of save," that it gave the West Virginia musicians' project $405,107, or $281,360 more than was asked. This was two months after Pearl Harbor.

"My files are crammed with examples of waste and unnecessary spending," says Senator Byrd, who is chairman of the joint congressional committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures. "A few picked at random may appear to be trivial, but remember, there are thousands like them.

"A list of new WPA projects include $32,809 for a student union building at New Mexico state college, and $30,652 for a municipal golf course at Raton, N. M. The National Youth Administration alone spent $262,892 for long-distance calls in a year. The treasurer of the United States says he will need $1,700,000 to meet the cost of paying checks issued by other government agencies."

SENATOR BYRD points out that elimination of nonessential spending would not only save money; with farmers and manufacturers begging for workers it would release 100,000 or more employes from nonessential federal jobs for more important work.

"Too many agency heads," he writes, "are more interested in what appears in the newspapers about them and their departments—provided it is complimentary—than they are in the latest news about America's war effort. Washington's output of publicity is unbelievable. Ninety million dollars a year is spent to send out 'news' to boost various departments and their heads. Nearly every agency has a staff of 'information specialists' and on top of these thousands are Lowell Mellett's $1,893,000-a-year information bureau and Archibald MacLeish's Office of Facts and Figures. They get in one another's way, fighting for space in the press to justify their existence.

"An example of one of the duties of a $3,200-a-year employe of the Office of Civilian Defense was found in his civil service job description sheet: 'Once a week the director (James A. Landis) attends a cabinet meeting. When the director leaves he is surrounded by newspapermen clamoring for a statement. To avoid an embarrassing situation for the director it is the incumbent's job to astutely get the director "out from under" when the questions directed by the news reporters seem to be getting out of line.

"It must be the height of something or other when the director of civilian defense cannot defend himself from newspaper reporters and has to depend upon a $3,200-a-year assistant to get him 'out from under'."

TODAY IN HISTORY

First draft registration of World war I was held on June 15, 1917. In it 9,586,508 young men between the ages of 21 and 30 were enrolled at the 4,557 registration districts of the country. After a careful physical examination and consideration for causes of exemption, 687,000 of the 1,347,000 drafted men were retained for the service. These were distributed among sixteen cantonments in as many states.

Walk Proudly

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

LET no one think they died in vain. They manned their guns until the decks buckled under them from the heat. Not a whimper. Not a moan. It was glorious."

So, standing above the graves of 3,000 Americans who perished at Pearl Harbor, Fleet Chaplain Macguire spoke. Spoke in Honolulu for us all. For there is not an American heart which does not echo those words.

"Don't say we buried our dead with sorrow. They died manfully. They were buried manfully. And we will avenge their deaths, come what may!

We should flame at those words, flame as the old crusaders flamed, flame as our own forefathers flamed when they spilled their blood to cement this American nation. They are not easy words to say or hear. They will change every life. They will mean years of sacrifice and readjustment.

It is the most sacred gift ever given America. It has revived an America we had almost forgotten—the America where men literally died for their faith. There are times when man must do that. They do not think about it. They do the job they have to do and take the consequences.

The men at Pearl Harbor did that. They saw the first wave of death that was to shake America and they sprang with bared breasts against it. Their deaths were not quick or easy. They paid a great price. But I doubt if any one thought of himself as a hero.

Theirs was the finest expression of the American way of life that we have even seen. They saw their job and they did it.

That is the greatest thing that can be said of any American today, whatever his or her position. That is the greatest thing he can do—to see his job and do it, whether he is threading a screw in some obscure bit of mechanism or tending a baby in some rationed kitchen. There are no degrees of heroism; they are all of a piece. And we who keep the faith serve it as fully whether we die in Pearl Harbor or some midwest village.

Blake Clark's book, "Remember Pearl Harbor," is not an easy book to read. It does things to you. It leaves raw places in your heart, but it makes you see America as you never saw it before. It makes you realize what Democracy means and what it is worth and how much we should be willing to pay for it. It elevates every life and every job to the height of a great crusade.

NO AMERICAN IS OBSCURE ANY MORE. NO AMERICAN LIFE IS WITHOUT AN AIM. IT IS UP TO EACH ONE OF US TO REMEMBER THOSE BOYS WHO DIED AT PEARL HARBOR, TO CARRY ON THE FLAG THEIR FALTERING HANDS LET FALL. IF YOU CANNOT FEEL THIS IN YOUR HEART, YOU ARE AS MUCH A TRAITOR AS ANY ENEMY ALIEN.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Quick Aid to China Needed to Stem Tide of War Weariness

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Thousands of determined women, eager to don the WAAC uniform, are driving WAAC officials wacky.

The campaign for enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps has succeeded too well. Major Oveta Culp Hobby and her chief lieutenants, Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, have a bear by the tail and they know it.

Sad truth is that there cannot possibly be more than 500 WAAC officer-candidates taken in now. No "auxiliaries," that is, non-officer WAAC's, can be recruited until the officers have been trained, possibly around Sept. 15. The greatest number of WAAC's that can be taken in this year is estimated at 25,000 and all of these will be subjected to a minimum of four weeks' training. This leaves some 275,000 disappointed would-be WAAC's out of an estimated registration of 300,000.

Toughest job of all falls upon the chief recruiting officers in the nine army corps areas. It is their job to sort out the WAAC registrants and select the lucky women. Those chosen then must face a series of very stiff aptitude tests and physical examinations before they are finally inducted.

Captured Jap Sword.

IT LOOKS as if the sulphuric personal relations between Philippine President Quezon and Philippine High Commissioner Francis Sayre will have to be toned down a bit for the sake of Philippine unity.

Trouble between them started the day President Quezon landed in San Francisco, at which time he telephoned long distance to a former governor general of the Philippines now in Washington.

"Governor," said Quezon, "my sword, my sword!"

"What sword?" was the puzzled query.

"That Japanese sword the high commissioner gave to President Roosevelt. He said it was from Gen. MacArthur, but it was from me. One of our Philippine officers took it from a dead Japanese, and I sent it back to the president by Sayre."

Note—Returning to the United States some weeks ahead of Quezon, High Commissioner Sayre had presented Roosevelt with a Japanese officer's sword. Newspaper accounts quoted Sayre as saying the sword had been sent by General MacArthur. Apparently there was a clear-cut misunderstanding.

Shaky China.

CHINESE leaders in Washington are not shouting it from the housetops, but behind closed doors they are doing some tough talking to the effect that an increasing number of Chinese are getting discouraged about the war and would like to see some kind of appeasement with Japan. Chinese leaders give this as the reason why China must have airplanes—and have them immediately.

The Chinese don't demand a lot of planes. But they do say that even a small fraction of the munitions going to Russia would work wonders in bolstering China.

Here is the Chinese picture now being presented to U. S. war strategists. After five years of war, the Chinese are war weary. Most discouraging thing is the ironical fact that the Chinese are worse off now, with Allies, than they were before, fighting alone. The Chinese were delighted after Pearl Harbor because it meant they had a powerful ally against Japan. But now six months of it, they almost wish they had been left to hold out alone.

That is why recent reverses in Burma and along the China coast have shaken Chinese determination down to the foundation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is not weakening. But many Chinese are, especially the well-to-do class, the people who yearn for restoration of normal business, who would rather have a chance to make money and live peacefully even under the Japs than to pay the frightful cost of continued war.

Meanwhile, Japan seems determined to crush China now. Apparently the U. S. bombing raids on Tokyo scared the Japs sick, made them see the danger of nearby Chinese bases, caused them to shift their strategy to cleaning up China ahead of other war-fronts.

U. S. war chiefs realize the urgency of the situation, but also face vital demands from Russia, the new 2nd front in Europe, and MacArthur. But now it looks as if promises made to China two months ago finally will be fulfilled.

Gas Rationing.

THERE may be divided opinion through the country regarding the need for nation-wide gasoline rationing, especially in the southwest, now glutted with surplus oil. But there is no divided opinion in the office of price administration. A nation-wide plan is being drawn up in full detail, and announcement will be made soon.

Basic reason is that gas rationing is the only way to conserve rubber, which OPA officials describe as "our most precious and irreplacable national resource today."

The nation-wide system will differ radically from the plan now in effect in the eastern states. Outstanding difference will be the "flow-back control."

This will require that a filling station operator tear coupons from the driver's book every time gasoline is sold. And the dealer must surrender these coupons to the bulk station before he can get a replenishment of supplies. The bulk station, in turn, must pass along the coupons, or a certified statement covering them, to the refinery.

Thus every drop of gasoline will be accounted for, and a complete check will be had on distribution, from the refinery to the individual gas tank.

The system is frankly a scheme to force drivers to save their tires, even in areas where gasoline is a drug on the market.

Political Go-Round.

AUTHORITIES have received complaints that General Robert Wood and Thomas Hammond, ex-America First leaders, are quietly working for the re-election of isolationist Senator "Curly" Brooks—despite the fact that they are civilian officials of the army's Chicago ordnance branch. Complaints are based on the Hatch act, which bars federal employes from political activity. . . . Energetic Representative Bill Jacobsen of Iowa is the possessor of a potent campaign argument. He has obtained more war contracts for his district than all the other Iowa districts combined. Jacobsen is being opposed by a president of two banks.

A Farmer's Diary

Consider the Mule

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHAT seems not at all extraordinary from any other creature becomes ludicrous from a mule. G. K. Chesterton has described this animal: "With monstrous head and sickening cry, and ears like errant wings, The devil's walking parody, of all four-footed things."

These "walking parodies" are common out our way. They furnish ample and able power for farming in the hills about our village and they are easier keepers, with longer life span, than horses.

Mules are temperamental. For weeks they will go along as gentle as kittens, then something sets them off and things are different. The other day a team of brown mules locked the hired man in a barn and went for a roll in our school superintendent's garden. It was an experience with rolling stock that the school man had not had at college.

Like most school men, he is a good fellow whose wife's garden comprises most of the lot behind their neat home. After school hours he is sometimes seen in shirt sleeves, wielding a long-handled hoe and squinting down the handle at the rows of vegetables and flowers. You gather, watching him, that gardening is not the central joy of his life, but he'll do it if it kills him—and woe be to the wayward bean that strays from the straight and narrow.

But those mules! They came careening down the quiet street in search of some new thrill and the rectitude of the pedagogical garden was the proverbial straw that made them itch to roll! Have you seen mules roll? You know then how they flipflop over and back, with wildly waving feet and gleaming white bellies, rubbing their lean necks delightedly against the earth—and the dustier the better.

Then, having enjoyed themselves, they rise and shake the dust from their coats, open their mouths and pray until the echoes answer from the hill.

And everyone who hears them has to smile. Even, in this case, the school man and his wife—which made those neighbors who looked on, like them better. Mules are so ridiculous—so almost human! We smile at them and the smile, somehow, helps hold the neighborhood together.

Could the donkey speak our language, he might use Chesterton's very lines—

"Fools! For I also had my hour;
One far fierce hour, and sweet;
There was a shout about my ears,
And palms before my feet."

Cavalrymen Are Asked to Dance Without Spurs

FORT RILEY, Kan.—(INS)—Spurs may form an essential part of a cavalryman's equipment when he is in the saddle, but they have no place on the dance floor.

That verdict was handed down by the patriotic young ladies who have been acting as dancing partners for the cavalrymen now undergoing their basic training at Fort Riley.

The girls said they would bravely tolerate heavy boots on their toes and resign themselves to dancing styles which range from the Texas Clog and Terre Haute hop to various versions of the Lindy Hop, but that spurs were too much of a sore point.

Hereafter the cavalrymen who wish to dance at the weekly get-togethers will have to leave their spurs home or else.

NAZIS TO GET ALL THE GRAVY, IF HITLER WINS

Correspondent Reports That Fuehrer Entrenches Party In Favored Spots.

(Editor's Note: Here is the third in a series of observations by Louis P. Lochner, noted American newspaperman, who recently returned from Germany after five months internment at Bad Nauheim.)

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

NEW YORK—(World Wide)—It's all gravy for the Hitler boys—if Der Fueher should win the war. The Nazi party will be in more complete control of the country than ever, and the party button will open the doors to all positions, all graft, all swag.

There probably would be one grand purge first, during which all those members who have rendered mere lip service to the regime would be ousted as dramatically as were Ernst Roehm and other Nazi leaders during the famed June purge of 1934. But whoever survived such a purge and remained a party member in good standing might look forward to a life of power, plenty, and possession.

During the first two years of the war the army seemed temporarily to eclipse the party and its formations. But Hitler was quick to see this. His top men like Goebbels and Himmler, jealous of the party's power, were, perhaps, even quicker to sense it.

The army with its thrust through Poland, its blitz victory in the west, and its conquest in Yugoslavia and Greece appealed more to the public imagination than the brown-shirted, rather pot-bellied Nazi ward heeler who remained at home to organize the distribution of food cards, check up on the loyalty of the population, and render other service far from the din and danger of battle

No sooner did the top men notice how the party was slipping in popular esteem, than they began to play up the exploits of party functionaries in the Goebbles-controlled press. There were articles to prove that the majority of the SA Brown-Shirts were playing a heroic role at the front, that the black-uniformed SS was in the vanguard in every military undertaking requiring courage and fearlessness, that the party was taking upon itself the thankless role of unostentatious heroism at the home front.

At home, too, the party was more and more intrenching itself. An American business man returning with us on the Drottningholm told me this story which I repeat, not because it is unusual but because it is typical of what I learned again and again before my internment almost six months ago:

"My brother-in-law," this man said, "a German manufacturer in Munich, in 1938 bought up an old merry-go-round solely to use the brass for manufacturing purposes He neglected to report the deal to the economics ministry. Recently this oversight was discovered by the authorities, my brother-in-law was indicted and fined 250,000 marks (equivalent to $100,000.)

"My brother-in-law pleaded with the judge to moderate the severity of the sentence. 'Are you, perhaps, a party member?' the judge asked

"Sorry, but I never got around to that I've tended to my business and haven't bothered about politics.'

"'That't too bad,' the judge observed. 'You see, if you were a party member, the presumption would be that your patriotism is beyond the shadow of doubt, wherefore failure to report the brass gained from the caroussel may be presumed to be a mere oversight. The fact that you are not a party member throws doubt on your loyalty, and we must assume you tried to cheat the government. So you must pay the full fine"

Beating Hot Weather In Mansfield Parks

Regardless of the fact that the old familiar topic of weather is a military secret these days, there's plenty of evidence around to establish the fact—if any evidence is needed—that it has been warm in Mansfield these last few days. These four photographs taken by the News-Journal cameraman show typical hot-weather scenes at various parks in Mansfield. No. 1—Catherine Bushnell looks mighty comfortable, as she cools her feet preparatory to taking a dip. No. 2—Donna Lee Friday, snapped at Central Park, is enjoying herself using the ice cream method to beat the heat No 3—Mrs C. H. McFarland seems to be enjoying her dip a lot more than Ruth April, her 13-month-old daughter, who doesn't look too happy about it all. No. 4—Eleanor Thompson (left) and Ruth Spring are taking it easy after a swim. The bathing shots were made at Liberty park and North Lake park pools.

'SKIPPY' WAGGED HIS TAIL TOO SOON, NOW HE'S BACK IN U. S.

(By International News Service)

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—This is the heartbreaking story of a dog named Skippy and a company of engineers.

The company of engineers is now in Iceland but Skippy isn't, although he traveled thousands of miles by land and sea to get there, enduring heat, cold, seasickness and confinement in the black innards of a barracks bag.

The engineers picked Skippy up a long time ago in Louisiana when the nation was at peace and the engineers were on maneuvers Skippy was a no-account dog who didn't seem to belong to anyone. But he took to the engineers and he took to army chow and pretty soon he had a whole company of masters

It was a simple matter for the engineers to cart Skippy around the states. He became a well-traveled dog, touring the Carolinas and working up to New York.

Then the engineers heard they were going to Iceland. They held a pow-wow. Some said they'd have to discharge Skippy from the company and others said he could go along. No one asked Skippy what he thought but his wagging tail said he was willing

So the engineers got Skippy a blanket and sewed his sergeant stripes on it When the time came to board the ship, Skippy was carefully tucked inside a blue barracks bag, resting quietly on top of some engineer's duffle.

After the ship sailed, Skippy scampered upon deck, much to the amazement of some of the company officers. Everything went along all right until one day Skippy discovered that his new home did something no other home before had done. It rocked. And Skippy got very, very sick.

The engineers did not look on him as a sissy, however, for some of them were very, very sick too.

But the dog and the engineers endured mal de mer, escaped submarines and finally steamed into a harbor in Iceland. When the time came to disembark, the engineers made the usual preparations. Skippy lay very quietly in his barracks bag slung over the back of a soldier.

But some sharp-eyed inspector at the gangplank spotted a gentle scratching or a slow tail wag and uncovered the whole plot. No, Skippy couldn't enter Iceland. He would be a menace to health, carrying any disease he picked up to the soldiers.

He went back on the ship with a ticket for the States. The engineers tried again with another barracks bag; they tried still again with an innocent-looking box. Each time the dock inspectors nipped the conspiracy and sent Skippy back.

The ship sailed away with Skippy aboard and the engineers ashore. Perhaps it's for the best—there are no trees in Iceland.

ARMY GETS NEW GASOLINE RANGE

CAMP SHELBY, Miss—(U.P.)—The army has a new 178-pound gasoline range that'll cook steak and potatoes like mother used to make—and do it on the run.

It can be handled by two men and transported in a light pick-up truck. While in transit to the field a complete meal may cook or simmer in the smokeless range pots.

They are used to cook meals in the baggage cars of troop trains and in long truck convoys. A unit can cook a complete meal for 100 men

It heats faster than coal or wood and temperatures are subject to accurate control. The soldiers like it—it fills in fine style that upon which an army travels

WRITER GIVES VIEWS ON WAR, ALLIES VICTORY

Gervasi's 'War Has Seven Faces' Placed on New Book List at Library.

Under the title, "The War Has Seven Faces," Frank Gervasi, a correspondent for Collier's magazine, tells why he believes the democratic forces will win the war and the peace that is to follow.

Gervasi's work, now available at the Mansfield Public Library, is the result of the author's observations in Great Britain, Capetown, Siam, Singapore, Cairo and the Philippines gleaned as he circled the world by bomber, boat and train.

In his new biography, THOMAS JEFFERSON, Saul K. Padover emphasizes Jefferson the democratic writer and thinker, but he also includes the human aspects of Jefferson the father, husband and friend. The result is a full-length portrait that fills a great vacancy in American biography.

THE PRIME OF LIFE by Gove Hambidge is a series of short essays which describe one day in the author's own life—his fiftieth birthday. Beginning with the early morning chorus of birds outside his home in Chevy Chase, Maryland, he follows through with bits about his family, his co-workers in the Department of Agriculture, his friends who drop in to call in the evening, and closes with midnight and his stint of writing done. His philosophy of life as well as his personal impressions of various Washingtonians are disclosed as the book progresses.

When Hitler attacked Russia and pushed his army toward Moscow, the world wondered whether his campaign would suffer the same fate as Napoleon's had 129 years before. NAPOLEON'S INVASION OF RUSSIA, 1812 by Eugene Tarle is the complete story of Napoleon's invasion, written from the Russian point of view, documented with material from the Russian archives that has never before been used, and which offers some astonishing parallels.

Other Non-Fiction: BURMA Road by Smith; AMERICA IN THE NEW PACIFIC by Taylor; POLITICAL HANDBOOK OF THE WORLD, 1942; AERIAL BOMBARDMENT PROTECTION by Wessman & Rose; THE SPECTER OF SABOTAGE by Matthews; MODERN BREAD by Sherman & Pearson; ROUND THE WORLD IN INDUSTRY by Collins; THE FOOD GARDEN by Blair; FISHING AND VACATION YEAR BOOK; TELEPHONE SELLING by Brisco

AND NOW TOMORROW is not only the latest but the last of Rachel Field's contributions to American literature. She died just as this book was leaving the press. Like her earlier novels, this one has a New England setting. Emily Blair, on looking back over the first twenty-five years of her life, realizes that there has been some queer kind of pattern behind it. Some trace remains of everything—yet she can never be again as she was in the past. And so Emily recalls her story—an unusual one—and in it Rachel Field combines that nostalgia for the past, which lends new meaning to the present. A heart-warming story as beautifully written as "Time Out of Mind" and "All This and Heaven Too."

A NEY WAY OF LIFE by Robert Hichens is the story of Noel Herriot, a young English curate who for his health journeys to Touggourt in the very center of the Sahara Desert; of Madame de Pleunier, the beautiful and seemingly self-contained wife of the French commandant; of la Marechale, the desert tribeswoman who watched over the native dancing house in Touggourt; and of Aziza, the lovely dancing girl in the green shawl who could not resist the call of her people.

AND DOWN THE DAYS by John Louis Bonn is a dramatic story based on the life of Elsa St. John Eckel, daughter of that Maria Monk who was the author of a notorious attack on the Catholic sisterhoods during the last century Although related in novel form, all of the characters so vividly pictured were living people and their actual names are used Mr. Bonn is the author of "So Falls the Elm Tree"

Other fiction: LINA CUSHMAN by Norris, BLOOD ON HER SHOE by Field, MONEY IN THE BANK by Wodehouse.

Kill Daring Bank Robber

A masked gunman who singlehanded attempted to rob the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company in Chicago's Loop was shot and killed, but wounded two bank guards before he died. The body of the gunman, identified from a selective service card as Henry Peter Karstens, 39, is shown above lying on the bank floor.

WELDER CYCLES NORTH FOR JOB

M'KEESPORT, Pa—(U.P.)—John McCollam, 58-year-old Tampa, Fla., welder, was so anxious to "fight the Axis" that he pedaled his bike all the way from Dixie to the western Pennsylvania industrial area in hopes of landing a war job.

The workman rolled wearily into McKeesport, announced it had taken him two months to cycle north, and explained that if he had no luck at local plants, he'd move on to Detroit McCollam said he stopped at Baltimore, but couldn't get work at the Bethlehem yard because of the rigid test given welders there was too much for him. However, he claims a leg injury suffered in an accident several years ago won't handicap him in his trade, and he expects to find a job as an acetylene welder.

HAVE A HEART

SWANTON, O—(U.P.)—In view of war-time rubber shortages the horse and wagon should be making a reappearance, but the law here isn't in sympathy. Clarence Bluffington of Swanton was fined costs after being found guilty of violating the law prohibiting horse-drawn vehicles in the downtown district.

CHURCH SCHOOL PROGRAM OPENS IN CITY JUNE 15

Sunday School Superintendents Complete Details for Daily Religious Study.

Leaders of the vacation church schools, completing plans this week for courses of study to be offered, announced today that the program will be in readiness for the opening of the sessions June 15.

The classes, held daily, from 9 to 11:30 a. m. will close June 26.

The five vacation schools, sponsored by the Sunday School Superintendents association, will be held at the following churches: Park Avenue Baptist, St. John's Evangelical and Reformed, Salvation Army, First United Brethren and the Union Gospel chapel. Eight other schools, sponsored by the individual churches will also be held.

Pupils at the schools will be divided into three age groups: the nursery, from four years to school age; the primary, first, second and third grades; and the junior, fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

Those directing the program said nursery age children will be taught to observe the beauties of nature and how to associate them with God; primary pupils will study the lives of children in biblical times; and juniors will study biblical lands and their contributions to the Christian religion.

Plans for courses have been in charge of Mrs. Albert L. Linder, nursery; Miss Delia Evans, primary, and Miss Elsie Smith, junior.

STARTS JULY 1

Motor Vehicle Tax Stamps To Go on Sale June 10.

Motorists were reminded by Postmaster H. E. Homberger today that the new motor vehicle tax stamp for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will go on sale at the Mansfield postoffice June 10.

The new stamp will be the first ever issued for a full year as the use of motor vehicle tax stamps did not become effective until last February. The cost is $5 for the fiscal year.

Postmaster Homberger said that new stamps will be issued monthly, the same as they have been in the past, for the convenience of drivers not purchasing stamps for July operation of vehicles.

SPLITS TRAFFIC VIOLATION FEE

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U P)—Cupid got Mrs. Elizabeth Andrus into trouble, and then helped her get out of it.

She told Judge A. E Wheellock she was hurrying to get a young couple to the marriage license bureau, so her husband, a minister could marry them, when she was halted for a traffic violation.

"How much did your husband get marrying the couple?" asked the judge. When told that the fee was $5, the judge decided to "split" an original fine of $5 to $2 50.

Here's an Important Announcement

The MANSFIELD NEWS-JOURNAL WILL PUBLISH PICTURES AND STORIES OF RICHLAND COUNTY SERVICE MEN

(OUTSIDE GREATER MANSFIELD)

In a Special "FLAG DAY" EDITION

SUNDAY, JUNE 14th

Read These Instructions For Sending In Pictures and Stories

1. For sending in pictures and information, use the coupon which is printed as a part of this announcement. The pictures sent in should, if possible, be of recent date. To print satisfactorily, the picture should be in sharp focus with no shadows across the face. Glossy prints are preferred. Pictures sent in are returnable. (If The News-Journal has already used a picture of the service man in question, this may be indicated in the coupon and the picture can be taken from the file and used again.)

2. The information about service men in the June 14th "Flag Day" Edition must be provided on the coupon blank which appears (right) with this announcement. It is probable that your son, brother or friend has been mentioned frequently in The News-Journal's column about our "Neighbors In the Service." That material will be disregarded in the "Flag Day" Edition in the interest of providing only the very latest information on every service man. Thus the blank must be filled out and forwarded to The News-Journal at once.

3. The deadline for both pictures and information for the June 14th "Flag Day" Edition is Monday, June 8th.

4. Arrangements have been made at The Mansfield News-Journal to accommodate relatives and friends wishing to send the "Flag Day" Edition to men at camp or stations abroad. Simply call at The News-Journal office, Fourth and Walnut Streets.

Fill out this coupon blank and send to the Service Editor, Mansfield News-Journal at once. Deadline is Monday, June 8, 1942.

CHURCH CIRCLES HAVE MEETINGS THURSDAY

Five Groups of First Presbyterian Church Hold Respective Sessions With Varied Programs and Devotional Periods.

THURSDAY was meeting day for the five circles of the First Presbyterian church. Circle One had a covered-dish dinner in the church parlors with Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Eugene Evans and Mrs. J. H. Sanford as hostesses. Twenty-two members and three guests were in attendance. Mrs. Earl Paxton had charge of devotions, topic for which was "Faith." Following the business session Miss Charlotte Ferris of the Westinghouse home economics department gave an interesting talk on "Nutrition." Next meeting will be held July 2 at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Smythe, Marion avenue.

Hostess to Circle Two at her home, 414 Chevy Chase road, was Mrs. T. R. Price. She was assisted by Mrs. John Hager. Devotions were in charge of Mrs. W. J. Bishop. For the program, Mrs. W. L. Parkinson described her visit in Panama. Twenty-two members and two guests were present for the meeting. Refreshments were served following the program. Mrs. Frank Nase will be hostess to the group on July 9 at her home, 542 West Townview Circle.

Sixteen members and three guests were present for the meeting of Circle Three which was held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Thompson, 310 Lexington avenue. Mrs. Franklin Bissman was in charge of the business session. The home was decorated with garden flowers for the occasion. Plans were discussed for the mother-daughter reception which will be held at the church on June 18. Mrs. Forrest Kimmel led devotions. Mrs. H. V. Downs, Richland county Children's Home matron, was guest speaker. Mrs. Thompson was assisted in serving lunch by Mrs. Philip Corey, Mrs. Robert Campbell, jr., and Mrs. O. I. Alverson. Roll call was answered by naming flowers. Mrs. Victor Ketner will be hostess to the circle on July 2 at her home, 483 Lexington avenue.

Luncheon was served to 28 members of Circle Four at one o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. M. Collins, Mapledale avenue. Associate hostesses were Mrs. O. B. Hoover, Mrs. F. A. Russell, Mrs. C. F. Torrence and Mrs. C. V. Baker. Devotions were led by Mrs. W. R. Hainer. Plans were made to have a breakfast meeting at Middle park on July 2.

When Mrs. C. W. Chew, 610 Highland avenue, entertained 23 members of Circle Five at her home, the afternoon was spent sewing for Mansfield General hospital. Associate hostesses were Mrs. J. C. DeYarmon and Mrs. W. C. Fort. On July 2 the circle will meet with Mrs. Irl L. Fisher, Park avenue west road.

Hostess to the Larkspur club at her home on East Fourth street Wednesday was Mrs. Nettie Mentzer. Short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Bertha Coleman. Mrs. Elmira Caugherty was honored with a surprise birthday and going-away party. Birthday luncheon was served at small tables decorated with tall tapers and cut flowers.

Mrs. Caugherty was presented with a shower of handkerchiefs. She will leave June 12 to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Cadet and Mrs. Jack Russell at Sheppard Field, Texas, and her son, Cadet Charles Caugherty, at Little Rock, Ark.

Prizes in games were won by Mrs. Mabel Ricker, Mrs. Regina Gresser and Mrs. Clara Johns. Mrs. Ricker will be hostess to the club at her home on West Fifth street in July.

Garfield Council Holds Luncheon

Mrs. Clara Cramer of 109 West Fifth street was hostess yesterday with Mrs. Frances Wolfe, as associate hostess, for the Degree team of Lady Garfield Council, number 24, Daughters of America. The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Alice Jenkins, president.

Games of bridge, 500 and bunco were played with prizes being won by Mrs. Hazel Stickler, Mrs. Della Cochran and Mrs. Hattie Kennedy. Later on a lovely two course luncheon was served at small tables decorated with roses. Plans were made for a picnic to be held at North Lake park pavilion on July 2, each member is asked to bring her own table service.

Family Group to Present Recital Saturday Night

Three children of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon A. Horst, Bartley avenue, will be presented in a senior recital at the Women's Club at 8:00 p. m. Saturday. Mary, a soprano, is a pupil of Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine. William, a violinist, is a student of Mrs. Daisy M. Gibson; and Virginia is a piano pupil of Mrs. Marie Marks Porterfield.

Friends and relatives of the trio are invited to attend the program, which will include vocal and violin solos and solos with violin obligatos. David Weimer will be accompanist for Mary. Virginia will accompany William. Mary was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school Thursday night and William will be a senior next year.

Society Meets For Luncheon And Program

Luncheon was served at the church at 12:30 p. m. Thursday to members of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church. Lucretia Hedges group was in charge of the luncheon. Mrs. O. G. Place, president, conducted the business session. Mrs. Wayne Ward had charge of devotions. Program was in charge of Mrs. John Kindel.

The Ullrich sisters entertained with musical numbers. Florence sang "My Shadow," "The Lilac Tree," and "Cuckoo Clock," accompanied by Marjorie. The latter played two piano solos: "Fantasia No. 1" and "The Rustle of Spring." Mrs. D. D. Montoya and Mrs. Anna Rice reported on the first national assembly which was held last week in Columbus. After the society sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," Mrs. Ellis Lincoln concluded the meeting with prayer.

Party Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Edward R. Friday, the former Phyllis Underwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Underwood, 92 Rowland avenue, was honored with a miscellaneous shower given at Prospect park pavilion last evening. Hostesses were Mrs. Rae Davidson and Mrs. Josephine Schomer, aunts of the bride.

Prizes in games were presented by the winners to the honoree. Luncheon was served buffet style from a table decorated in pastel colors. Mr. and Mrs. Friday were married on Easter Sunday, April 5, at Mineral Wells, Tex. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Friday, Park avenue west road, is a candidate for Officers Training School at Fort Benning, Ga. Mrs. Friday is making her home with her parents while her husband is in service.

Slacks 'Excellent When Worn for Right Occasions'

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

The great controversy over whether women and girls should or should not wear slacks does not seem to me to be a moral one. Since there is nothing either exhibitionistic or immodest in these outfits the issue seems merely to be one of expediency.

Personally I believe that slacks are here to stay and I think they are excellent when worn on the right occasions The girl who works on a farm, in a war industry, classroom, laboratory or assembly hall can move about more freely and gracefully in slacks The same costume is both more appropriate and comfortable for most outdoor activities.

Some old men, a few middle-aged ones and even some young men are violent in their criticism of "women wearing pants" They are used to the femininity of skirts and feel that women are usurping a masculine privilege. This may be, subconsciously, their chief objection because due to the physical freedom this apparel affords, some girls can compete, even excel, in certain active games of skill which men have always supposed were beyond feminine mastery.

These gentlemen shoudn't worry, however, over a mere change of clothing making women masculine. Feminne intuition tells most women that slacks are not very flattering. They realize that the female figure in masculine or near-masculine attire doesn't inspire the male consciousness with a desire to be either romantic or protective. So they don their prettiest frocks when they wish to appeal to the opposite sex, and gain added appeal by the sudden contrast of costume.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. "My boby is five months old. When should I try to get him to take milk from a cup?"

A. Try him a bit now. Go at it very tenderly, avoiding his resistance. Try him from time to time later on, then he might be the more ready for weaning at the age of eight or nine months.

Q. What do you advise for whims in the tot—wanting to sit only in a certain chair, having bread broken just so, or being served by a certain person only?

A. Quit catering to his whims. Let him sit in the chair available or stand, eat the bread offered or none, accept the food or drink from whoever gives it, or go without.

Q. "Can a child read too much?"

A. Assuming that the books he reads are wholesome and he gets ample sleep, ample outdoor recreation with many others of his age, that he has good light and does not over-tax his eyes, be happy that your child is a great reader.

Q. Do you have any special helps on sleep problems of a child four or five?

A. Yes; write me for these enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

In 1940 the output of crude oil in the United States was 1,350,000,000 barrels of 43 gallons each.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I am not prepared to subscribe to that, Jack," I told my brother-cousin, smiling at him affectionately, "nor can I say that Hal would make a better husband than you could if you would put your whole mind on the job. But if you mean he would make a better husband than you have proved for the last few years, then I agree with you.

"However," I went on quickly, "that is beside the point. Katharine loves you only. It is your job to vindicate her choice. Can you do that?"

"If I live, I can—and will," he said solemnly. "But Margaret, you must not ask me to see her now I will not expose her to the peril any knowledge of me would involve.

"It was bad enough to put you in danger," Jack went on, "but at least I did not do that of my own volition.

Won't Endanger Katherine.

"Fortunately for Katherine — and for your children—these people evidently and rightfully believe that she knows nothing of me, and therefore are not searching in that direction. That's why I must not go near her until this thing is cleared up."

There was the finality in his voice which I knew of old. Jack always was slow in making any important decision, weighed every consideration carefully, but once he had made up his mind, nothing could change it.

"For the same reason," he said "Katherine must not know that you have seen me, nor must I send her any word."

"But surely, you could trust her—"

"Her discretion, yes;" he said, "her emotions, no. If by any chance these fiends should decide that she did know something of my whereabouts and succeeded in getting in contact with her, demanding information—perhaps threatening your children — her eyes alone would betray her knowledge. So it's far better that she knows nothing of me or my present activities, and I am counting on your honor, Margaret, to say nothing whatever to her about me. You have heard nothing of me. Will you remember that?"

"Yes, I will remember," I told him, "and I will say nothing about you to Katherine until you give me permission."

"That is all I want to know," he said. Then he sat silent a moment, looking off into space.

"You are entitled," he said at last, "to know what I can tell you about that cryptogram page you brought to me."

"I am entitled to nothing, Jack." I said "and I must not take up your time listening to it. I am sure you will tell my father everything."

"I already have," he answered, "except something that isn't mine to tell. But what your father knows he will tell you, I have no doubt."

"In his own good time," I amended, smiling.

"Exactly," he said, "But there is something you should know. The sheet of cryptograms which you brought to me is one of three, so vital to the thing upon which I am working that I cannot go on with the work without them. I have not your phenomenal memory, and even if I had, I would not dare to entrust anything so vital to it.

Stupefied By a Drug.

"I checked everything the night before I left camp, and my file was complete then; nothing missing. I locked it and put it under my pillow, for we had to leave camp early the next morning. I never let that file leave my person; it was not bulky. The next chance I had to examine it without being observed was the night before I was to go on board ship. Then I missed the three sheets, and knew that somewhere I must have been given enough of a stupefying drug in my food to enable a spy to gain access to that file."

His voice ran down, and I put a crisp question.

"When you said 'we had to leave camp early,' whom did you mean by 'we'?"

How to Reduce Use Of Sugar

By BETSY NEWMAN

If your family uses its whole allotment of sugar for the table, what then? This is the actual case of a family of four, father, mother and two children The mother portioned out the amount and said it was all used at the table, leaving none for cooking or desserts. The only answer to that is to cut down on the amounts served individuals. Train them to cut their portions at least in half. Many folks who go on a diet do without sugar on fruit, in tea or coffee or over cereals, and gradually come to enjoy these foods better without. It is largely a matter of training, and shouldn't be too hard.

Today's Menu.

Branburger Grill Baked Potatoes
Watercress-Lettuce-Green Onion Salad
Fresh-Berries or Stewed Prunes
Cinnamon Toast Coffee or Tea

Branburger Grill.

1 lb. ground beef
1 egg
2 Tbsps. grated onion
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1½ tsps. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup milk
½ cup shredded bran
8 strips bacon
4 peeled firm bananas
Melted butter

Mix beef, salt, egg and seasonings. Add milk to bran and soak 5 minutes. Combine mixtures and form into 8 patties about 1 inch thick. Wrap each with strip of bacon and arrange meat on broiler rack, allowing about 3 inches between surface of meat and source of heat. Broil about 5 minutes or until brown, then turn. Brush bananas with melted butter, sprinkle with salt and place on rack. Continue cooking until bananas are tender. Serves 4. The meat patties can be made ahead of time and put in the refrigerator until time to cook.

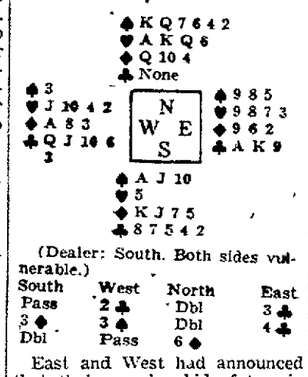
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAS HE THE WEAPONS?

A player's ability to cope with tactics used by his opponents does not depend primarily upon his shrewdness and general intelligence. In the bidding it is also important to him to have some way to tell his partner the facts about his hand regardless of what the enemy may attempt. In some situations he may lack the necessary weapons to combat them.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	2 ♣	Dbl	3 ♣
3 ♦	3 ♠	Dbl	4 ♣
Dbl	Pass	6 ♦

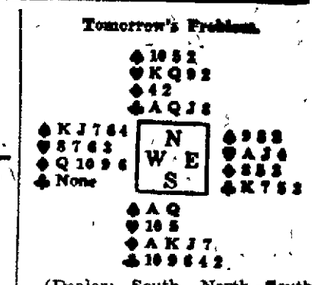
East and West had announced that their opening bid of two in a suit was on a weak hand, not good enough for a sound bid of one. With a hand strong enough to guarantee game, they would merely bid one of a minor, which must be kept open, and would jump on the second round. That explains the peculiar looking opening call of 2-Clubs in the bidding sequence given above.

North might have done better if he had decided to treat his hand as a two-suiter, by bidding spades on his first turn, and then hearts later, perhaps after a spade rebid. Instead, however, he doubled to show the general strength of his hand at once That opened the door for West to fenagle North out of the correct contract by making that crazy-sounding bid of 3-Spades, which was not particularly dangerous, since he knew that the side had a club fit for an escape if doubled, and that the opponents were strong.

North's double of that showed a certain amount of strength in the suit, but he could not dare leave in his pariner's double of 4-Clubs, and consequently had a hard job to do. Not knowing whether his partner had any spades, he was afraid to bid 6-Spades. He also feared that any lower bid might result in missing the slam which seemed to be present, and so he decided to bid it in his partner's suit with 6-Diamonds. South could not take this into 6-Spades, as North's earlier double of spades did not necessarily indicate any appreciable length in the suit.

The brilliant young man who did the opposing business in the West was Peter Leventritt, holder of several national championships, and he had the pleasure of seeing South beaten two tricks in the wrong contract of 6-Diamonds, after he led the spade 3.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.

If West bids 1-Diamond over South's original 1-Club and later 3-No Trumps are bid, what is the correct defense by East and West to beat the contract?

Salmon and Potato Puffs.

1 lb. can salmon (2 cups)
2 Tbsps. butter or margarine
2 Tbsps chopped parsley
2 Tbsps. chopped celery
3 eggs
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
1 tsp. minced onion
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
Few drops tabasco sauce
1 tsp. salt

Drain fish, flake with fork and remove bones. Melt fat and cook celery and parsley in it for a few minutes, then combine with salmon, mashed potatoes and seasonings, add beaten egg yolks, and beat mixture until very light. Fold in well-beaten egg whites, pile lightly at once into greased baking dish, and bake in a moderate oven ((350° F.) for 1 hour, or until set in the center and lightly browned. Serve from dish. Baked in ramekin dishes this puff will be very light and fluffy.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 6

TENSION, agitation, strenuous and trying activities in an effort to put over some worthwhile projects or innovations, is indicated by the prevailing astral influences. But the culmination of such aggressive endeavors may be considered dubious because of a combination of treacheries and undercover tactics. Those come from individuals as well as corporations or big interests.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves keyed to high endeavor and energy for the accomplishment of big things, justified by sound programs and quickened executive ability, but there are to be several elements of opposition. Keep constantly alert in avoiding trickery and also refraining from excess generosity.

A child born on this day should have much constructive ability, determination courage and conviction, with energy and initiative.

SPECIAL LIGHTS TO MARK AUTOS IN BLACKOUTS

U. S. Army Engineers Draw Up Specifications For All Vehicles, and Cattle.

By HAROLD C. McKINLEY

CLEVELAND —(AP)— By their lights, you'll know the kind and size of motor vehicles you pass in the night during blackout—and how to pass them safely.

If you're a good civilian, you'll need a pretty good reason before civilian defense officials let you drive at all in blackouts.

In case you are permitted to use your car, a war department specification tells you how private automobiles — as well as trucks, ambulances, fire and police vehicles, trolley and buses—should be illuminated to screen them from enemy aircraft and provide maximum highway safety.

Drawn up by army engineers with the aid of the office of defense transportation, the war production board, other government agencies and electric companies, the rules are expected to be placed in effect soon by the office of civilian defense.

You're cautioned to stay in the dark at least five minutes before attempting to drive on blacked-out streets and highways to adapt your eyes to the darkness.

You'll have one driving lamp —a 10-candle power bulb with reflector encased in black metal and shaded by a hood and mask. It's about one-fifth the strength of ordinary headlights, placed to the left center of the car, 36 to 55 inches above the road and far enough forward to prevent relection from the vehicle.

Two small marker lights, near the front headlights, will define the vehicle's width. These bulb lights can be seen by approaching traffic at a distance of 1,000 feet.

A combination tail and stop light gives off a faint, red glow while the vehicle is in motion, and an amber glow when it stops These are V-shaped and recessed to obscure them from low-flying planes.

In addition, vehicles must have two or three reflector lights on each side, amber toward the front, red toward the rear.

Requirements are the same for ambulances, police and fire vehicles, street cars and buses, except that vehicles 80 inches wide must have two tail and stop lights. On ambulances, the small marker or "clearance" lights are white; on other vehicles, amber.

Motorcycles require one running light, one marker light and one tail light, while bicycles, push carts and other human-propelled vehicles require front and rear reflector lights.

It will help, too, if chromium and other shiny surfaces are covered with lustreless paint—drab brown, preferably. Hub caps, bumpers and other low portions should be painted with a white, reflectorized paint. Dashboard lights are out, unless the illumination is of low intensity and deep red color.

Pedestrians, like motorists, are expected to keep off streets and roads unless they have business there. In that case, they should wear white or reflectorized leggings, or white handkerchiefs tied around their legs, and carry blackout lanterns or flashlights.

You can use approximately the same equipment on cattle if you must drive the animals over a highway during a blackout.

Call Soap and Water Antidote For Mustard Gas

BERKELEY, Cal.—(INS)—Plain soap and water is the best antidote for persons who have come in contact with lewisite or mustard gas, according to Dr. Joel Hildebrand, professor of chemistry at the University of California.

Hildebrand came to the conclusions through experiments performed on himself. He served with the Chemical Warfare Service during the first World war.

"It is far more important to treat the skin promptly than to await some elaborate degassing process," Dr. Hildebrand asserted.

Dr. Hildebrand said his experiments showed that treatment should be prompt to prevent diffusion of the substance into the skin.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1942 PAGE ELEVEN

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Expansion of the Japanese raid on Dutch Harbor into an attack on our Midway Island, with heavy naval and air forces, compels us to take a wider view of these operations and note they are further indications that we are on the verge of a general Axis onslaught which will try to force a decision in the world war this year.

While the precise purpose of the Japanese raids are still in doubt, they fit in perfectly with the signs that the Axis volcano is about to erupt. Certainly the fact that the Japs struck at little Midway in strength, even employing a battleship, would seem to indicate that they are bent on something more than hit-and-run raids. They are building towards a climax.

Also a part of this broad picture, is the thus far unsuccessful but determined Libyan offensive of Nazi Marshal Rommel in an effort to get set for a drive against Egypt and the Suez Canal. That is an integral item of the Hitlerian strategy for conquering the Middle East and reaching the supplies which Germany must have.

The Nazi Fuehrer is about to strike, and his allies and henchmen are coming into action.

Any day now we may expect him to launch against the Muscovites that much advertised "spring" offensive which has been so long delayed.

We are on the verge of the conflict which bids fair to be the greatest and bloodiest of history. Upon its course depends in major degree the outcome of the entire world war.

Private advices say the Nazi chief has ready for action some 200 divisions of fresh troops—in the neighborhood of 2,750,000 men. These are in addition to the million and a half who have been holding the long Russian line during the winter.

He also has that vast Nazi air fleet which has been largely idle for months. Hitler apparently has been husbanding and adding to his aerial striking power for coming events. The strength of this armada is, of course, problematical but military experts are agreed that it is a mighty force.

All this sounds formidable—and indeed it is. Any Allied complacency because of recent successes certainly would be badly misplaced, and it should be emphasized that the Allied high command is in no way underrating Hitler's strength. He is a dangerous enemy.

What we can note with satisfaction is that drawn up against him is a Russian force numerically superior. Whether the Reds are equipped to withstand the mechanized German onslaught cannot be answered in advance of the event.

If the Russians can keep the Germans from breaking through to the resources of the Caucasus and Middle East, the Allies will have Herr Hitler neatly speared on the toasting fork.

As Hitler strikes so probably will the Japanese intensify their operations in co-operation. The Nipponese may even thrust into new fields of venture. They may direct their fire against the United States; they might hit at Russia. Opportunity and conditions of the moment will guide their strategy.

House Decides Fate of CCC, NYA Today

$50 ARMY, NAVY PAY MINIMUM NEARING O. K.

Early Action Seen as Senate Smarts Under Charge of Being 'Niggardly.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Early congressional approval of $50 monthly minimum pay for the armed forces appeared likely today, with the probability that soldiers, sailors and marines having dependents would be required to contribute $20 to $22 a month toward the support of their families.

The pay increase question lay in the lap of a restive senate, smarting under charges it was being niggardly in not accepting immediately a house proposal to boost the salary of buck privates to $50, instead of the $42 it voted previously.

With Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) pressing for a showdown vote on Monday, influential senators who had sought more time for compromise efforts admitted privately they had little doubt that the higher figure would be adopted.

The house arranged meanwhile to take up on Monday a family allowance bill passed by the senate yesterday under which wives of military men receiving $78 a month or less would be paid $50 monthly for their support, the first child $12 and other children $10 each.

The senate-approved measure would require the enlisted men to contribute $22 of this amount, the government paying the rest. In addition, he could elect to contribute $5 more, to which the government would add $15 for a dependent parent, $25 for two parents and $5 for each additional brother, sister or grandchild. If the soldier had no wife or children, his contribution to the latter class of dependents could be $22, on a voluntary basis, and the government would add $15 for one parent, $25 for two, and $5 for a brother or sister.

A house version of this measure would provide only $40 for the wife, of which the enlisted man would contribute $20, with the government providing $10 for each child.

Another provision of the senate bill would authorize the selective service, under the president's direction, to fix the order in which registrants would be called for active service.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said this section ought to make it fairly certain that men of 30 or over who had been married before the draft would be the last to be called.

BALLOTS ON MONEYS FOR 2 PROJECTS

Debate Indicates Congress Feels Youth Program More Justifiable.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The house votes today on the issue of whether to continue the functions of the Civilian Conservation corps and the National Youth Administration or to abolish the two favored projects of President Roosevelt by stripping them of necessary funds.

Rep. Traver, (D., Ga.) said he felt his amendment restoring the $75,000,000 appropriation for the Civilian Conservation corps in the labor-federal security appropriation bill had a "very good chance" of approval. The house appropriations committee knocked the CCC funds from the $1,134,269,000.

Traver and Rep. Hare (D., S. C.) both indicated confidence that the drive to eliminate the National Youth administration from the measure would fail.

But as expressed in speeches through three hours of general debate, it appeared that the NYA was regarded by members as more justifiable under the acid test of usefulness in the war effort.

This was indicated despite the attack on the NYA by Rep. Dirksen (R., Ill.) whose proposed amendment would eliminate the youth agency and transfer its defense training and education functions to the office of education in the federal security agency. A $58,000,000 appropriation for NYA is provided in the bill.

"If I had to guess on the outcome of house action, I would guess that the NYA would be retained," Hare said. He added cautiously:

"I wouldn't risk a guess on the CCC."

Two members, Reps. Pierce (D., Ore) and Coffee (D., Wash.) cited the importance of the CCC to the timberland areas of the northwest and Pacific coasts, "now threatened by the menace of Jap bombing."

"Oregon alone for this summer's protection could well afford to pay the cost of the CCC cut from this bill," Pierce declared.

The CCC units, he said, are now trained, valued fire-fighting units.

"Our citizens are now anticipating — hour by hour — visits from Jap planes," Coffee asserted and added that incendiary raids could send this "whole area up in flames in one hour."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Broadway's Bit.

The biggest hit on Broadway has no box office. It has no marquee, no aisle seats, no footlights; no tickets of admission, because all you need to get in is the uniform of one of the United Nations. Did I say all? It's not a well-chosen word, because the uniform of a man who may die for freedom is a pretty expensive ticket.

Kilgallen

The biggest hit on Broadway is the Stage Door Canteen. It has the biggest stars in the world, continuous performances, dancing between the acts and refreshments all the time. It is a wonderful place indeed. It pulls in 2,000 to 3,600 customers a night, and the customer is always satisfied.

I suppose when it is all over and the years have passed and the memories dimmed and the new generation learns to ask questions, it will cut very little ice to say that during World War II you worked in a place called the Stage Door Canteen, entertaining the soldiers. That does not sound like anything very close to danger or glory or blood and tears, or any base for heroics; when peace comes the Stage Door Canteen will fade from the record like words written on a beach close to the water's edge. And that's all right. That's fine.

But ask them now what they think of it. Ask the lonely sailor with empty pockets what is means to have a piece of chocolate cake and a smile and a pretty girl to dance with; ask the soldier on his way to glory how it feels to hear music and the laughter of friends before he steps off into the unknown.

Night before last, wearing the uniform of a hostess at the Stage Door little red-white-and-blue apron of Canteen, I sat at a table with two fliers who had just arrived from a place I will not mention and were soon to leave for what it is fashionable to call Shangri-La. They were, I suppose, typical of the American soldier; I hope so, for they were intelligent and polite, humorous and rather shy and quietly unafraid.

The dark one, the more talkative one, said: "This is the first time we've been here. I'm glad we came. You see, we're leaving tomorrow, this is our last night in the U. S. A. and we kind of felt it was—well, you know."

"Special," I said.

He nodded. "Yes, that's how we felt. We walked along Broadway, and we don't know any body, and when you think it's the last night you get a lump in your throat."

The other one grinned. You could see the small show of sentiment was embarrassing him. "Aw, swallow the lump," he said.

We all laughed then. But you knew he felt the way his friend did, maybe a little more and that's why he was afraid to talk about it. You knew what it meant to both of them to have this place to come to instead of walking the dark streets killing time, killing the last few hours in their homeland.

Perhaps that illustrates why those who work at the Stage Door Canteen—and the work involves patience, generosity and sweat—feel that it is quite a privilege to slice bread in the hot kitchen, check hats and handbags in the stuffy hostesses' cloak room, clear off the tables, wash dishes, and dance until ready to drop.

Perhaps the same reason urges the biggest stars in pictures, on the radio and in the theater to go down to the Canteen and put on shows for this relatively small audience with no reward, not even publicity, for the activities of the Canteen are very lightly publicized.

TELLS FFA OF NEED FOR FOOD

Major Declares Armies Still Depend on Stomachs; Ex-Clerks Eat More.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Armies of the United Nations are traveling largely in "jeeps" and trucks these days instead of on their collective stomachs, but according to Maj. Charles S. Robinson, their success will still depend on that old familiar pressure beneath the belt buckle.

Major Robinson, of Fifth Corps area headquarters, is one of the men who feed the army. He told delegates to the convention of Ohio Future Farmers today that "unflagging energy and painstaking care" would be necessary to insure an efficient adjustment of the all-important military belt buckle at home and abroad.

"There are two very good reasons why the call is going out for every able bodied person to help the farmer with food production," he said, "the war is drawing manpower from agriculture as well as industry and high wages in war plants are luring labor away from the nation's farms."

He explained that former shoe clerks and bookkeepers, who used to grab sandwiches and soft drinks for lunch, are now eating six pounds of food a day. They got by on three pounds in civilian life, he said.

Shoe soles that used to last several months are good for only ten days of marching, he said. Blankets and uniforms to supply the armed forces have quadrupled the amount of raw material normally required by civilian America.

WILLS $38,500 OF $207,316 ESTATE TO CHURCHES, COLLEGES

Mrs. Lola D. Krause, who died in Mansfield May 3, left a total of $38,500 to three Mansfield churches and their affiliated organizations and two Ohio colleges, under provisions of her will which had been filed today in probate court.

Her estate was appraised at $207,316, including $160,707 in stocks and securities. She was the widow of John Henry Krause, one-time member of the firm of Krause Brothers.

The First Presbyterian church and Sunday school and affiliated organizations will receive $18,500 in outright bequests and the residue of the estate after other bequests are paid.

Wooster college will receive $10,000 to be used for missionary purposes and Wittenberg college at Springfield will get $5,000.

The will sets up a $3,000 memorial fund for the First Lutheran church, Mansfield, in tribute to Jesse W. Porch, Mary J. Porch, Annie J. Conley, and Mary Mildred Conley.

A memorial fund of $2,000 was established for the First Christian church, Mansfield, in memory of the late Fannie Urquart who was to have received that amount from the estate.

A $10,000 endowment fund was established for the First Presbyterian church. The Missionary society of that church will receive $5,000; the Deacons' fund, Westminster brotherhood, and Forget-Me-Not club, $1,000 each, and the Sunday school, $500.

Mrs. Krause bequeathed amounts ranging from $500 to $5,000 to 20 relatives and close friends She left no immediate relatives.

She specified in her will that any of the legatees who attempts to break the will must be limited to a $1 bequest. C. C. Beelman, Mansfield, is executor of the estate.

DECLINE AGAIN

Sales Tax Receipts Decrease $5,623 in 3rd Week of May.

Richland county sales tax receipts for the third week of May dropped off $5,623 from the corresponding week last year while the decline throughout Ohio amounted to $268,668.

Collections in Richland county for the week totaled $10,974 as against $16,597 in the same week last year. Totaf receipts in the county so far this year are $210,417, a decrease of $57,545 from the corresponding period in 1941.

Only six of Ohio's 88 counties showed increased receipts for the week ending May 23. All six were agricultural counties, indicating that farmers are getting more money for their products and spending it.

THREE CITED

Liquor Board Hearings Ordered For Permit Holders.

The state liquor control board today cited three Richland county area permit holders to appear in Columbus next week for hearings.

Dispatches from Columbus said Albert B. Wurn, Bucyrus, was ordered to appear Tuesday to answer charges of sale to minors, and that officers of the Ashland Elks and Eagles lodges were to appear Wednesday on charges of slot machine operation. All three hold beer and wine permits.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"I suppose," Brand said slowly, "that is a sensible way to look at it, and I do want to be sensible. But—well, I had thought that romance, if it ever came to me, would be more—er, attractive than this proposition."

"I know, but this is not romance that has come to you. It may be duty, and if so, I know you will meet it as such."

"Of course. I suppose you are right. You have done a big thing, you have performed a miracle. Don't think I don't understand that. Now—yes, I will do my part. You go to the lady—"

"Do you remember her, Brand? You met her, I am told, at the McCleod party."

"Yes, Bliss says that's so. I remember meeting a Miss Deane, but my mental picture of her is that she is a shy, demure little thing. But never mind all that. I begin to see it as you do, that I owe it to my uncle's granddaughter to help her obtain the Webb fortune. Tell her I will marry her if she wants me to, that I will at once make my will, leaving her the greater part of the money I receive from the estate. And that I will present no obstacles to her getting a divorce from me at her own convenience. But I'm more interested in your getting me out of here, than I am in my marital affairs. However, I promise you, I'll play fair with that girl. It may be that she will decline to marry a man she doesn't know at all, even to inherit a fortune. In that case she would rise in my estimation."

"Don't be silly! She has seen you, she knows you are presentable."

"All right, then. Present me to her and let me know if she accepts."

Stone went directly to Miss Malcolm's house, wondering what lay ahead of him now. Surely he had never had such a wildly improbable case before!

Miss Malcolm greeted him smilingly, and held out both hands to him.

"You dear man!" she exclaimed. "You are a wonder! To think of your finding Una!"

"Is she suffering from shock?"

"Yes, that; and there is something more. It's about that will. She is still nervous and bewildered."

"I don't wonder! Where has she been? With whom?"

"Oh, with a very strange set of people. They tried to make her sign papers, and—well, I wouldn't let her tell me, she grew so excited over it. I said she must wait for you."

"She was in charge of some woman?"

"Yes, a woman who was common and illiterate, but who was careful of the girl, too. She told Una she was Monk's sister."

"I am glad she was decently treated. Will she see me?"

"Yes; but please don't excite her more than is necessary."

* * *

When Una entered the room, Stone was surprised at her calm demeanor and self-control. He greeted her quietly, and said he was glad to see her in such happy surroundings.

She smiled and said Miss Malcolm was her guardian angel, and there never was such another.

"Tell me, please," Stone said, judging direct and short speech would be best, "how many people were in the house where you were held."

"They were coming and going," Una told him. "I seldom saw them, except Mr. Monk. He was of horrible appearance, but he was not really unkind. He told me that matters which I could not understand had made it necessary for me to stay there with his sister for a while. He said if I would sign a paper I could leave there much sooner. He said all he wanted was for my father's benefit and if I refused I was an unnatural daughter.

"I was unmoved by that argument, and I refused to sign anything at all, unless I had someone I knew personally, to be with me when I signed. He asked me whom I knew, but they were either people connected with the art school or people I have met here at Miss Malcolm's. Naturally, he knew none of these and as I wouldn't sign without them, that plan fell through."

"It seemed to me things were not progressing as they had hoped, for some reason, and then they began to appear frightened about something. Mr. Monk became a little less polite to me, tried to be more dictatorial. I was afraid of him, but I did not show it, or at least I tried not to, but he is a shrewd man, and I can tell you I was glad to see a policeman! Captain Raynor was splendid, and sent me to this house, in care of a most polite officer. And that's about all, I think."

"It's all I shall bother you about now, Miss Deane, except one other matter. You are the granddaughter of Jason Webb?"

"I am, yes. But he disinherited my mother when she eloped with my father."

"Still, you are his granddaughter. Do you know the contents of his will?"

Una Deane looked vaguely troubled.

"Not exactly," she said. "I have heard different stories, and the ones told me by Mr. Monk, I am sure were not true. Will you tell me?"

"The terms of the will," Stone said, "are of a kind often used in the fiction of last century, though not so often in real life. However, it pleased Jason Webb to make his will in accordance with his own inclinations, and with this result."

Then he told the girl the provisions Webb had made.

She listened thoughtfully.

"Yes," she said, "that's about the way I heard it, but I couldn't believe it. What ought I to do, Mr. Stone? What do you think, Miss Malcolm?"

But both her friends declared that she must do according to her own wishes, that no one could advise her, without knowing her feelings about it all.

"There's one thing sure, then!" she exclaimed, with a sudden burst of indignation, "no matter if the fortune is a hundred million dollars, I would not marry a murderer to obtain it! Please tell Mr. Brand Herrick that I resign all claim I may have to my grandfather's money, if it can be acquired only by my marriage to a murderer!"

Miss Malcolm was deeply touched. She sat down by the girl, putting an arm around her.

But Fleming Stone looked at Una Deane with an expression of grave reproof.

"You are unjust," he said coldly. "Mr. Herrick has not been proved a murderer, and you have no right to call him one. I bring you the message he asked me to deliver for him.

"What is it?" asked Una Deane, her face exhibiting only scorn.

Stone told her what Brand had asked him to tell her.

She listened closely, and when he had done she said, in a cutting voice:

"Please present my compliments to Mr. Brand Herrick, and tell him I decline his suit. I do not marry a man I do not know, for the purpose of acquiring a fortune, especially when that man is—may be—a murderer."

"If you did know Mr. Herrick," Stone said, "you would not speak like that."

"Why would I not?"

"Because he is trying to do only what is best for you. He made the plan I told you of, since he could think of no better way for you to secure the money and be free of him."

"Yes, Una," Miss Malcolm said, "I think you are unfair to him."

"I don't care! He can take the money or leave it alone. I don't want it, with a marriage certificate tied to it!"

"You have seen Mr. Herrick," Stone said, marveling at this display of temper. "How can you think he is anything but fair?"

"I have seen him!" Una stormed on. "But he scarcely spoke to me! He paid me no more attention than if I were a black beetle! Mr. Murray was pleasant; Mr. Haynes was at least polite, but Mr. Herrick is outside the pale!"

"You know," Stone reminded her, "you can get a divorce at once."

"And spend my girlhood as a divorcee! No, thank you!"

"But, dearie!" Miss Malcolm was almost angry at her friend. "That isn't Mr. Herrick's fault! You can't get the money without him, any more than he can get the money without you!"

"Then let the money go to Ebbitt's Corners! What do I care."

Una Deane ran out of the room, already in tears.

"Nerves," said Fleming Stone, as he rose to go.

"Wounded vanity," said Miss Malcolm, as she said good-bye to him.

"You are a marvel, Mr Stone," Raynor said, after he had listened to the details of the detective's find of Una Deane. "Without your help I doubt we would ever have found Jason Webb's granddaughter."

"Oh, yes, you would. It was a mere streak of luck on my part, and much credit belongs to young Peter Cobb."

"We'll look after him later Just now, I'm busy with what we are calling our second McCleod case. I insisted on having one of our men at the autopsy, though Doctor Larkin conducted it."

"What caused Miss Emily's death? Was she smothered, as Mrs. McCleod was?"

"Not quite the same. Miss McCleod died from asphyxia caused by strangulation. There was evidence of intense pressure on the carotid arteries, and a congested condition of the brain. She was murdered by a pair of strong and determined hands, and as she had a weak heart, her death was easily accomplished. It occurred between four and five o'clock, and Ogden Murray is known to have been there during that time."

"Motive?"

"He had been trying to sell the lady some worthless stock. There is the possibility that there was a quarrel, in such case, Miss McCleod would hold her own, and if it came to blows, he would, of course, win by superior strength. Miss Emmy was a virago, I happened to know, and she was afraid of no man."

"I can't think there was a rough and tumble fight," Stone said, slowly. "I think young Murray would be too wise to commit a murder in circumstances where he must necessarily be the only suspect."

"When a man loses his temper far enough to murder, he doesn't stop to think of the consequences."

"No further evidence, I suppose? And no clues?"

"We haven't found any yet. Do look into this matter, won't you, Mr. Stone?"

"Yes, I mean to do so. Have you any reason to think that the murderer of Miss Emmy is the same one who killed Mrs. McCleod?"

"No especial reason, no. You see, we think Brand Herrick is guilty of—"

"Well, he isn't," Stone interrupted, "and I expect to prove it. Now, if you think the two McCleod murders were done by the same person, that let's Herrick out."

"Yes, of course; but we haven't said the same hand struck twice."

"You're not going to arrest Murray, are you?"

"We haven't quite enough on him for that, but unless you can find a way to look, I think we'll detain him for further inquiry."

"Give me twenty-four hours. I'm working for Herrick, you know, and the Una Deane complication is getting troublesome."

"All right, then, I'll hold off Murray till tomorrow, and you bring us one of your magic solutions to our puzzle that will take our breath away."

"If I find out what I hope and expect to find out, I will do just that; and I'll guarantee it will be a surprise."

From Raynor's office, Stone went to the McCleod house.

He was shocked when he saw Hugh's appearance. The man seemed a mere ghost of his former self. Stone had never seen him before without the superior air that made him, at times, insufferable.

Today, he was pathetic. His large sad eyes expressed hopeless sorrow, and his whole demeanor was that of one who has nothing to live for.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two western adventures for young readers can be found among the reviewed books now at the public library. The first is suitable for boys and girls above the fifth grade and the second is for the junior high reader.

SHEEP WAGON FAMILY, by Myra Reed Richardson — Cora Belle's mother and her younger brother and sister lived in a sheep wagon on the Wyoming prairies and with the help of Uncle Ben they herded a flock of sheep. Their neighbors were all cowboys and cattle men who scorned sheep herders and their "woolies." When the children went to school the other children teased them. Naturally there are many exciting adventures which follow.

CAVALCADE TO CALIFORNIA, by Richard Aldrich Summers —Before gold was discovered in California certain leaders in Mexico thought that territory would be good land to settle. This book tells the story of one of the first caravans to travel overland among Indians and through deserts to settle around San Francisco Bay.

The American flag of 1795 had the stars arranged in three rows of five each and served for 23 years.

China Signs for Lease-Lend

China has been brought into the so-called "master" lease-lend agreement as Dr. T. V. Soong, left, Chinese foreign minister signs the agreement in Washington with United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, right.

Reading Club For Youths Opens at Library Saturday

Youthful subscribers to the Mansfield Jublic Library will enroll Saturday for membership in the Treasure Seekers club, summer reading course open to third to ninth grade pupils.

Patterned after the Robin Hood club of last year, the course will offer awards to members reading 10 books during the summer and submitting written reports on them by Sept. 1.

Miss Myra Lorimer, children's librarian in charge of the club, said that certificates will again be presented and that members who have previously earned two certificates will receive a book at the end of the summer if they read the prescribed 10 Newbery Medal books.

A map denoting Treasure Island will be used to indicate the progress of the respectice members and this will be hung in the library children's department.

OHIOAN INVENTS STEEL RECAP FOR HIS DAIRY TRUCK TIRES

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD—A "steel recap" has been developed by a Springfield dairy manager to meet the rubber tire crisis and help his transportation problem on milk deliveries.

The "steel cap," devised by H. F. Kohl, consists of a band of steel over a worn out rubber tire, which absorbs the shocks.

Kohl experimented on his heavy duty dairy truck with gratifying results. The dairy manager had a badly worn 6.00x16 truck tire—a tire worn through the breaker strip and two plies of cords. He fashioned a band of soft steel around the tire which was inflated to normal 35 pounds pressure.

Four guide pieces, each one-eighth of an inch thick and two by two and one-half inches, were welded to each side of the steel band. The tread weighs 46 pounds.

The "steel recap" was driven uphill, downhill, on roads with plenty of holes and lots of loose gravel and crushed rock, at speeds ranging from 35 to 47 miles an hour. Kohl believes the best speed for the recap is 40 miles per hour.

He said materials cost $3.25 and the welding charges amounted to $9.

"The recap plan has very definite advantages," said Kohl. "Road shocks are absorbed through the cushion of rubber and air between the wheel and axle and the steel tread. There are no tack punctures or stone bruises. The tread is easily removed by deflating the casing, and repairs can be made by a heavy hammer or by welding, if needed.

A rubber casing and tube should last indefinitely when thus protected Kohl remarked.

The only drawback, he added, would be a shortage of steel.

It seems there will be some baseball here this summer after all.

Joe Atton is lining up the few players left from last year's Liberty Park team, and filling out with graduates of a good American Legion junior club, and expects to be able to put a pretty fair aggregation on the field.

Object of this sudden baseball activity is Atton's plan to stage a U. S. O. benefit game, or games.

* * *

"We want to get going before gasoline rationing comes in to make schedule making tough," explains Joe, so if a benefit game is played you can expect it very soon now.

Joe would like to hear from ball clubs in this vicinity, and particularly from Plymouth where the Locomotives have been strengthened this season by the addition of players moving into town defense jobs.

* * *

And who will pitch for this Mansfield club? Bob Winbigler. "He's got more stuff, better control, and a cooler head than any young pitcher I've ever caught," says Joe, who has caught a few.

Former Bellevue Coach Vern Hoffman, who now tutors the Mansfield Tyger hoopsters, should be interested in this item:

Harry Strobel, coach at Orrville high school for the past five years, has asked to be released from his contract there so he can become head coach at Bellevue where he has been offered a three-year contract at increasing salaries of $2200-$2300-$2400 for the three years.

And a $300 a summer playground job goes with the offer.

Here's the final windup on that basketball letter problem at Mt. Vernon high school. (Are you still interested?)

Coach Myron Prech awarded monograms to Seniors Ken Stull and Gene Rouse, and Junior Bill Wright, and withheld them from the rest of the squad who boasted of breaking training.

That's stickin' to the old guns, Mike.

* * *

After all that strife and straining,
They get no V's 'cause they broke training.
(I broke training once.)

Sharpshooters Seek Ohio Title

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Two hundred sharpshooters began firing today for $2,100 in prizes at the 56th annual Ohio State championship trapshoot.

The state's ace clay target smasher, Joe Heistand, Hillsboro farmer who won the 1941 doubles title, was not entered. Heistand, who holds the world's long run record of 1,179 at 16 yards, now is teaching America's airmen how to hit moving targets.

Mark Hootman of Hicksville, winner of the Grand American Handicap championship in 1913, is defending the state handicap laurels he won last year. The doubles event of 50 pairs of targets was the other opening day event.

* * *

Class championships are up tomorrow and singles Sunday. Also on Sunday's program are the women's and junior championships.

The five high scorers in the singles will represent Ohio in the state team race of the Grand American at Vandalia in August.

Mel Ott Sets New RBI Record

Breaks Hornsby's Old Mark Without a Hit.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MEL OTT is likely to be remembered in baseball as the quietest record breaker on record.

Nobody gives it much thought anymore, but every time the 33-year-old outfielder-manager of the New York Giants hits a home run or draws a base on balls he breaks the all-time National league record—which he himself holds.

Yesterday he broke another—the runs batted in mark of 1,582 that Rogers Hornsby took 23 years to set—and Ott performed the deed in such a muffled way that it would not even have been noticed if people hadn't been waiting and watching for the last week. He didn't even get a hit.

With Bill Werber on third base in the third inning of a game at Chicago with the Cubs, Ott lofted a long fly to right and Werber scampered home with the run that brought Ott the record in his 17th season. The Giants won 4 to 3.

Every time Ott drives in a run now he will set a record and fans will think no more of it than they do his bases on balls and home run marks—unless he remains active long enough to get close to the record for both major leagues, 2,209 set by Babe Ruth during 22 years in the American league.

The St. Louis Cardinals strengthened their hold on second place in the only other National league encounter by beating the Boston Braves 6-2.

In the American league the New York Yankees sent Edgar Smith, the unlucky southpaw, staggering to his ninth straight defeat with an 8-2 verdict over the Chicago White Sox. Joe Gordon and Buddy Hassett extended their hitting streaks to 20 and 15 games, respectively.

Cleveland rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Boston Red Sox 4-2 for Jim Bagby's first victory since May 17. It was his seventh of the season, however, and the Indians' second straight at Boston.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers pushed across seven runs in the last two innings to beat the Philadelphia Athletics and the surging St. Louis Browns bettered the Washington Senators 7-2.

Hale America Sectional Opens

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Top golfers from five states meet tomorrow in the opening round of a sectional Hale America tournament at Kenwood Country club.

Eight places in the June 18-21 finals at Chicago will be sought by 73 qualifiers headed by Byron Nelson of Toledo, exempt from preliminaries as former National Open and P. G. A. title holder.

Eighteen holes of medal play are scheduled for tomorrow and 36 Sunday with golfers from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania competing.

FOXX CUB DEBUT PUT OFF 3 DAYS

CHICAGO — (INS) — Jimmy Foxx's first appearance with the Chicago Cubs was put off for at least three days today despite the announcement that the veteran first baseman, recently purchased from the Boston Red Sox, is not suffering from a broken rib as feared.

A physical examination disclosed, however, that the newest Bruin had some cartilage loosened when he used his chest to stop a line drive recently in batting practice.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—With Jimmy Foxx gone, Joe Cronin figures on himself as the Red Sox regular first baseman. He has started seven games so far at third base, short and first and the Sox have won five of them. . . . But old Double X claims that the club's best first sacker is Paul Campbell, who gave up trying to get Jimmy's job and shifted to the outfield. . . . Says Fortunes of War Hold Grid Attendance Secret

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)— What's the war going to do to football attendance next fall?

Henry D. (Hen) Taylor, Ohio State University's director of ticket sales for the last score of years, who probably knows more about fan-reaction than anyone else in the Buckeye realm, answered that today, and his answer was:

"I don't know!"

Through business booms and depressions, through good seasons and poor, Taylor has seen thousands pour through the stadium turnstiles, but tire rationing and possible gasoline limitation are new problems to him.

If you can tell me how America will be faring in the war on Oct. 1, I'll tell you how the football attendance will compare with former years," Taylor said. "If we are winning or holding our own in good shape on the battle fronts, attendance will stay up—but if things are going against us the least bit, it's hard to tell what will happen to our gate receipts."

Taylor predicted, however, that the 10-game attendance at Ohio State's games this fall would approximate the eight-game attendance of 1941, when 488,471 saw the Bucks in action—breaking all records by 88,788.

"Tire and gasoline rationing probably will cut deeply into the attendance by out-of- towners," he said, "but some of that slack will be taken up by defense workers having more money to spend for sports. The Illinois-Ohio game, shifted to Cleveland from Champaign, will produce more fans than it would have drawn in Illinois, while the two service games, against Fort Knox and the Iowa Air Cadets will hike the total considerably."

No matter how high the attendance soars, Ohio State will not show a profit next fall, for all funds over operating expenses will go to the Army-Navy relief work.

"It may be we will show a loss for the season," Taylor said, "for our board is definitely in favor of donating 10 per cent of our gross receipts to the relief fund. That probably would run between $25,000 and $30,000. Add that to the $40,000 to $50,000 we pay in state and federal admission taxes, and Ohio State will make a pretty fair contribution through football alone."

Season ticket sales, with the books costing $15 for seven home games, instead of $11.50 for five contests as in the past, are about 50 per cent of last year's on comparative dates, Taylor said. The ban against use of high school buses for all trips except to and from classes probably will slash attendance of the scholastic customers far under the 45,000 who were guests at two games last fall.

While the Illinois-Ohio game at Cleveland may draw a big game, Taylor said he expected it to cut materially into the attendance of games in the Buckeye stadium.

"It's possible," he said, "that fans in northeastern Ohio will attend only one Ohio State game, due to the gasoline and tire restrictions, and they'll probably pick the one closest to them—the contest in the Cleveland stadium.

Taylor said the university had about $25,000 in new athletic equipment on hand—enough to run practically all sports for two or three years—but that some of next season's baseball, track and other minor sports engagements might have to be called off because of transportation problems.

"If that's the case, we'll save money," he declared, "for we seldom break even on those jaunts.

"We have trimmed our budget to the bone for next year, hoping to hand over as much as possible to the relief funds. We are prepared for one of our worst financial seasons, but are hoping for one of the best."

ASKED GRID GAME WITH GIRLS' SCHOOL

CHICAGO—(AP)—Bron Bacevich, St. Bede Academy football coach, tried to schedule a game with Aquinas high school for next season. The answer he got was that Aquinas was for girl students only.

Bacevich, after recovering wrote to the Aquinas official as follows.

"I was surprised to learn that yours was a girls' school but, at that, the way my boys have played at times your girls no doubt could give 'em a good game."

CHAMP'S MANAGER GETS SUSPENSION

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Eddie Walker, manager of Chalky Wright, featherweight champion, has been suspended pending a hearing by the Boxing commission because he did not appear at yesterday's meeting for questioning about a title defense by his fighter.

Wright, who is from Los Angeles, is recognized as champion by New York state, which requires a title defense every six months. Wright, according to the commission has not fulfilled this requirement.

Fleming Wins One for Tribe

Ninth-Inning Double Plates Two Markers.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Lashing Les Fleming led the Cleveland Indians into Yankee Stadium today with another notch-in his bat for busting up ball games in the final frames.

The port side puncher did it again yesterday when he cracked a double after two were out in the ninth to drive in the tying and winning runs, and then scored on a single to give the Tribe a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox at Boston.

* * *

In yesterday's game Dom DiMaggio homered for Boston in the third and Buster Mills tied it up with a circuit clout in the seventh.

The Bosox forged ahead, 2-1, with one in the eighth on a walk and Bobby Doerr's double.

Fabian Gaffke opened the ninth for Cleveland by walking. Kenny Keltner and Jeff Heath flied out to DiMaggio. Mills walked, sending Gaffke to second, and then Fleming smacked his two-bagger to tally them. Les crossed the plate with the final marker on Ray Mack's single.

Gordon's Swat Rise Fails To Surprise Rival Hurlers

By PAUL SCHEFFELS

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Joe Gordon's position atop the American league batting heap—with an average of .386—today is a distinct surprise to most of the circuit's performers. But opposition pitchers are wondering why he hasn't been up there sooner.

Edgar Smith, chunky Chicago White Sox hurler, who lost his ninth straight game to the New York Yankees yesterday summed it up briefly in the locker-room following the game:

"Sure, Gordon's hitting like a demon but it's no surprise to me, and I'll warrant that nearly all the rest of the boys feel the same way. He's always been a tough hitter and a difficult guy to get out."

Gordon's brief, four-year span as the Yankees' regular second sacker gave little promise of his ever becoming a major league batting champion. His lifetime average is only .275 and his highest mark was .284—in 1939. He reached the .300 circle only once before. That was in his first year at Oakland, when he batted exactly .300.

But if his daily batting average formerly hovered around the paltry .275 mark, his power in the clutch—when hits mean the difference between the winners' and losers' share in the world series—was just the opposite.

He hit .500 in the last world series against the Brooklyn Dodgers and carved out a .400 standard against the Chicago Cubs in the 1938 classic. Then again, take the runs-batted-in column, a true yardistic for measuring any player's worth. In his four years previous to this season, Joe has jolted home 398 runs, or 100 per season.

The 27-year-old Californian now has hit in 20 straight games, slamming out a double and a single in four times at bat against the White Sox yesterday.

Birds Finally Get Started

Begin to Show Form That Won 1941 Title.

The long overdue Columbus Red Birds finally have started to make their hits count, signaling the rest of the American association that they are heading toward the form that carried them to the championship, last year.

Their twin killing from Milwaukee last night should provide a big boost.

The blow to the Brewers, by scores of 3-2 and a tremendous 14-4, allowed Kansas City to climb two games ahead in the leadership. The Blues captured their seventh straight win and their fifth in the series with Toledo by clipping the Mud Hens, 4-2.

St. Paul took its ninth straight defeat as Indianapolis swept a doubleheader, 4-3 and 5-2. Louisville and Minneapolis split a double bill for the third straight night, the Miller's taking the first, 2-1, and dropping the 12-inning second, 6-5.

MEL HEIN OFFERED YALE COACHING JOB

NEW YORK — (INS) — Howie Odell, new head football coach at Yale, has approached Mel Hein, captain of the pro football Giants, concerning a post as assistant coach at the New Haven university, it was revealed today.

Hein, regarded as the outstanding center in the pro game, has indicated he may play another season of professional football.

Ski Champion Ends Retirement Rumors.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Ski Rider Alf Engen, squelching reports that he's about to retire after holding most of this nation's ski titles, says he won't hang up his runners until another Engen —Alan—is ready to take over.

And son Alan is not much past the toddling stage.

Alf, 30, and holder of 500-odd ski trophies collected in a dozen nations, says he probably will become a specialist instead of competing in all ski events.

"A fellow just can't step out of the way overnight. After all, I've been skiing almost since I was able to walk.

"I'll probably keep on competing until my boy can come along to take my place."

Engen, the 1942 National Open slalom-downhill combined champion, came from Europe in 1929 and became a citizen. His most cherished medal is one for "Americanism." Americans of Norwegian descent presented it to him as the outstanding leader of their group in that year. Engen wears it daily.

Horse-Doping Ruled Immoral

BUENOS AIRES — (AP) — A Buenos Aires criminal court judge, having pondered the practice of "doping" race horses, has ruled it an "immoral deed" but not a crime.

This decision, which has failed to arouse much enthusiasm among Argentina's legions of railbirds, was handed down in the case of "El Chato," a souped up plater who knocked the wind out of the totalizer clients by placing in a race in which he was figured among the also-rans.

In acquitting the horse's trainer, the judge assured him that the charges did not affect his "honor or good name." He suggested, however, that his "immoral deed" might constitute a basis for civil suits by disillusioned bettors.

QUESTION: WHO WAS TRICK SHOT?

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. — (AP) — Jack Redmond, trick shot golf star, has good occasion to remember Penang, one of the Malayan cities now held by the Japanese.

Redmond, while on a world tour, arrived in Penang for an exhibition but couldn't find anyone good enough to make the exhibition worth while.

"Finally," he recalls, "the caddie master, a Malayan native, humbly agreed to play me so as not to disappoint the crowd.

"He shot a 66."

FRENCH PUSH RAILROAD TO AFRICAN PORT

Nazis Prod Engineers Laying Track of Vital Military Road to Dakar.

VICHY—(U.P.)—French engineers, with German urging and the help of native laborers, are pushing the Trans-Saharan railway toward Dakar, strategic South Atlantic port, at the rate of 1,000 yards a day.

The railroad will have a tremendous economic value in helping Vichy France feed its population with the produce of the rich African colonies, but as great as its commercial value is, its military worth is even greater. (Free French military experts have frequently pointed out the possibility that Germany would seize Dakar for a thrust at Brazil.)

It will provide a line of communications from the Mediterranean to the Niger and complete a through route from the Mediterranean French naval base of Oran to Dakar, African port closest to South America.

Such communication would provide adequately for any future operations for the defense of Dakar and French West Africa, and for possible reconquest of lost African colonies should the war last that long.

The railroad will be the backbone of the future military defense of French Africa just as it will be the lifeline of French commerce and colonial expansion.

Vichy is getting whole-hearted cooperation from Germany in its construction. There is a great shortage of steel in France where most produced is requisitioned for German war industries, but the potential military and strategic value of the Trans-Saharan is so great that the German military authorities are not only pressing the French to rush the railroad, but also have given priority to sufficient rails to keep the work going.

Many of the rails are coming from abandoned rail lines in France where operations have been given up because of the shortage of coal and rolling stock.

Even at top speed, however, the most optimistic engineers see little hope of completing the missing segments of the rail route before the end of 1943.

Work now is in progress on a 250-mile segment from Colomb-Bechar on the edge of the desert, to Reggane. From Reggane the road will go on another 1,000 miles to reach the Niger and join up with the Senegalese railway system which already runs into Dakar, Saint Louis and Bamako.

The Trans-Saharan is moving forward 1,000 yards a day toward Dakar, and it is so vitally needed for the French colonial program that already sections of the new route have been put into use behind the workmen.

ONE MISSING

LAWRENCE, Mass.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Dana W. Scott of Lawrence, a button collector specializing in uniform buttons, says the prize in her collection is a gold-plated copy of buttons made in Waterbury, Conn., in 1776 for Gen. Lafayette's uniform.

Included in the collection are 47 metal buttons stamped with state seals. Only state missing is Minnesota.

THEATERS

Picturesque Film.

John Steinbeck's picturesque story of the California paisanos reaches the Ohio screen Saturday with Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr, and John Garfield and Frank Morgan at the top of the cast. The loves and hates of a simple fun-loving care-free people of the Monterey "flats" are woven into the story that primarily concerns a lazy impetuous character named "Danny" and his paisano charmer named "Sweets Ramirez." Garfield and Miss Lamarr have the romantic leads and Tracy distinguishes himself by playing the village philosopher.

Klondike Saga.

Teeming saga of the Klondike in the days of '98, Rex Beach's "The Spoilers," with Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott and John Wayne, opens Saturday at the Madison. The mad rush for gold in the frozen north motivates the action while Miss Dietrich enacts the femme fatale over whom men fought and died. The great fist-fight that enlivened the old silent version has been used again and and the picture also returns William Farnum, star of the original production, in the role of a lawyer. "True to the Army," with Jerry Colonna, is the second attraction.

Frontier Drama.

Drama of frontier days, "Westward Ho!" showing at the Ritz presents the Three Mesquiteers in their usual roles of crusaders who intervene when they see injustice being done to the weak and helpless. This time innocent people are the victims of gangsters. Bob Steele, Rufe Davis and Tom Tyler head the cast. "The Mad Doctor of Market Street," with Lionel Atwell, Una Merkel and Richard Davis is the co-feature.

Air Thriller.

The thrilling story of a great Polish pianist who sacrificed his career to aid in the Battle of Britain is depicted in "Suicide Squadron," the Park attraction. Anton Walbrook plays the leading role and Sally Gray is cast opposite the star. "She's In the Army," a wartime comedy depicting the activities of "soldiers in skirts," is the second attraction. Marie Wilson and Warren Hymer are cast.

Detective Thriller.

William Gargan and Margaret Lindsay are teamed in "A Desperate Chance for Ellery Queen," the Saturday attraction at the Majestic. Bill Boyd's picture, "Rolling Down the Great Divide," is the second feature.

STEADY CLIMB CONTINUES ON STOCK MARKET

Fractional Advances Made By Some Leaders; Retail Lag Becomes Pronounced.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances predominated in today's stock market proceedings.

Improvement was registered for American Telephone, United Aircraft, Anaconda, N. Y. Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Goodrich, Consolidated Edison and Chrysler. Off a shade were Woolworth, U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber and General Electric.

Holders of merchandising shares studied the Dun & Bradstreet survey which said the lag in retail activity was even more pronounced this week. Weather conditions received some of the blame, along with indications shoppers were becoming hardened to reports of shortages. Sales for the country as a whole were placed at 4 to 8 per cent under the comparable 1941 week.

Confirmation of the nation-wide let-down in spending was given by the Federal Reserve board which estimated department store dollar volume for the week ended May 30 was 11 per cent under the like period last year. It was the second consecutive weekly drop from the 1941 level.

TELLS GRADS TO INCREASE SKILL AND PROFICIENCY

Kenyon College Prexy Tells Grads of Patriotic Duty — They Are Facing.

"All of you who can, should go to trade schools, technical schools, or to college until the army or navy asks you to do something else."

"Girls should become nurses, laboratory technicians, chemists, linguists available for the signal corps," he continued, "boys should become aviation engineers and fliers, deck officers and engineroom officers."

"Fighting now, a nation of 132,000,000, against active enemies who total 196,000,000 Germans, Italians and Japanese, we must make up with skill what we lack in numbers."

"Skill will both win the war and establish the peace," Dr. Chalmers emphasized.

"Eighteen mobolized units are needed on the home front to support every man with a weapon in his hand," he stated. "Most of these eighteen must be skilled men, men trained in mathematics, physics, biology, or some other science or foreign language."

"There are many languages talked by our allies and our enemies, which almost no Americans understand," he pointed out.

"High school graduates are needed to study these languages and, although it sounds fantastic, college students should begin with the study of Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Hindustani and Persian."

"If this were peace," Dr. Chalmers went on, "I would ask you to continue study for the sake of your own inward happiness: but the war makes the enlargement of your mental powers the one path of duty."

"In behalf of America," he concluded, "you must go forth and improve your skill for victory and for peace."

The graduating class marched into the stadium from the school to the strains of Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the high school symphony orchestra under the direction of Sigurd Jorgenson.

Class President Lee Adams gave the salutation and near the close of the exercises led the graduates, asting as a unit, when they changed the tassels of their graduation caps from left to right side, signifying their graduation.

The invocation was given by Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Marking the end of his first year as principal of the Senior high school, Glenn G. Rohleder presented the class for graduation. This year's class is one of the two largest in the school's history. Another class of 308 members was graduated in June, 1939.

H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education and father of one of the graduates, Edward Stanton Arlin, presented the diplomas.

During the program the two class songs were sung as solos. Virginia Davis sang the song composed by Jean Kelly and Marilee Sword and Richard Miller sand the one written by Fred Morey.

Rev. M. L. Gordon, father of one of the graduates, Richard Edward Gordon, and pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal church in Toledo, gave the benediction.

Following the benediction the class, again led by the two standard bearers, marched slowly around the track and out of the stadium as the orchestra played the recessional.

PURCHASES ELEVATOR

George L. Rogers, Mansfield truck and farm equipment agent, has purchased the Plymouth Grain elevator and equipment formerly operated by Jerry Ratcliffe of Plymouth. Ratcliffe recently enlisted in the U. S. army air corps. He is stationed at Wright field near Dayton.

TAKEN BY DEATH

G. D. Copeland, Milk Dealer, Dies at Hospital.

Grover D. Copeland, 58, Richland county milk dealer for a number of years, died unexpectedly at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at Mansfield General hospital after a heart attack.

Mr. Copeland, who lived with his mother, Mrs. Claire Copeland, on the Bowman street road, accompanied his son, Paul K. Copeland of Mansfield, on their regular milk route yesterday morning. He suffered an attack during the morning and was removed to the hospital.

He was a native of the Rome community where he was born June 1, 1884. He lived all his life in Richland county.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 p. m. Saturday at the Finefrock funeral home with Rev. J. C. Searle, pastor of the United Brethren church of Shelby officiating. Burial will be in the Shelby cemetery.

Surviving are his mother, two sons, Paul K., of Mansfield, and Jack M. Copeland, serving with the U. S. army in Iceland; a grandson, and one sister, Mrs. Milton Lunch of Shelby.

INJURY FATAL

Man, 65, Dies After Being Struck By Automobile.

ASHLAND—A man identified as Charles Hine, about 65, Wheeling W. Va., died in Samaritan hospital here this morning of injuries received when he walked into the side of an automobile while attempting to cross U. S. Route 30 in Jeromesville, sheriff's deputies said.

The man died five minutes after arrival. County Coroner Dr. George Emery said he suffered a skull fracture.

According to Deputies William Morris and M. L. Rickenbrod, the car was driven by Woodrow Fankhauser, 26, of Rittman. Fankhauser, the deputies said, told them he was driving west on Route 30 and had a green traffic signal at State Route 39. He said Hine was crossing the highway against the red signal and that he swerved his car to avoid hitting him. He was not held.

21 KILLED, 40 HURT IN BLAST

ating ordnance plant in the world and the first of the government's new midwestern arsenals to produce certain types of munitions.

The estimate of 40 injured was given by the public relations officer at the plant. A few minutes earlier he had said that "some undoubtedly were killed and a good many injured."

Hurry calls were put in for doctors, nurses and ambulances to Joliet, Kankakee and other surrounding cities.

A call for fire-fighting equipment also was put in to Kankakee and other towns. At Kankakee, 22 miles away, residents reportd they felt the shock distinctly.

Windows were shattered and plaster was knocked from the walls of the Big Four station there.

Joliet, 14 miles to the north, also was rocked. Doors of the county jail were blown open and one of the jailers said "I thought the whole jail was going."

The explosion came shortly before 3 a. m. and within a few minutes telephone wires were jammed with calls, principally from the ordnance plant to nearby cities asking for aid.
